HURLEY ASKS U. S. TO PURGE WPA BOOK

Governor Hurley, within the next 24 hours, will ask President Roosevelt to order drastic revision of the new Works Progress Administration guidebook, and will demand discharge of those "responsible for besmirching the name of Massachusetts."

The governor had announced today that he would register formal protest with the President just as soon as State Librarian Dennis Dooley has completed a written report and review of the book.

At the American Legion convention in New Bedford he took one step further, declaring he would demand that the President see that those responsible for the objectionable character of the book be dealt with properly.

"I will demand that they be discharged," he said. "They are not the type of persons who should be getting relief from federal funds."

WOULD DELETE SECTIONS

That State Librarian Dooley would condemn those sections of the book that reflect on Massachusetts' courts and the character of its people was a foregone conclusion, although Dooley declined to discuss his projected report in any way.

The Evening American learned, however, that Dooley will probably recommend to the Governor deletion, or revision, of practically the entire introductory section of "Massachusetts: A Guide to Its Places and People."

Dooley's written report will be in the Governor's office some time late today and will be forwarded

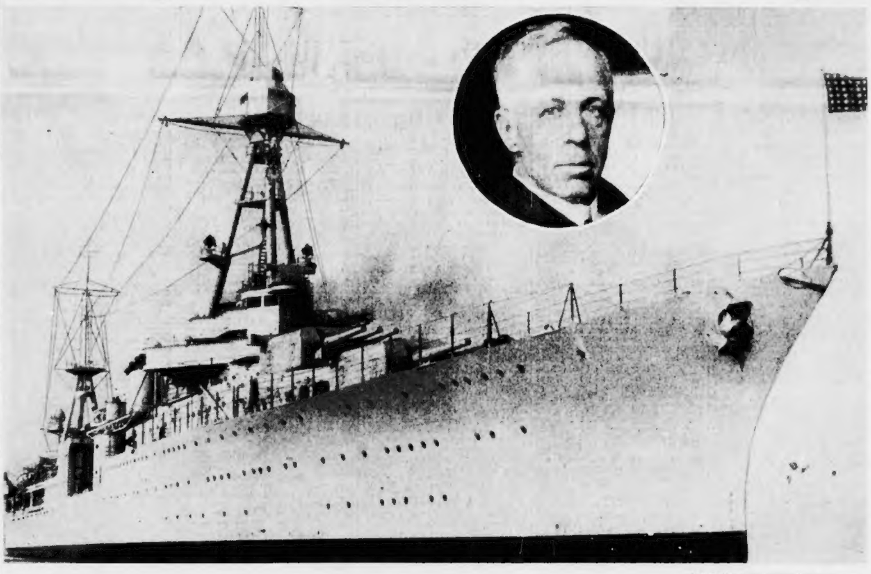
Warship Hit---Admiral Who Defies Japan



International News Photograph Service

This United States cruiser, the Augusta, flagship of Uncle Sam's Asiatic squadron, was hit by a "stray" Chinese or Japanese shell today as she lay at anchor in the Whangpoo river, near Shanghai. One American seaman was killed and 18 were injured. Aboard the Augusta was Rear Admiral H. E. Yarnell, commanding officer of the squadron, who earlier today defied Japanese naval orders regarding ship movements.

SHELL IN CHINA HITS 19 U. S. SAILORS

By JAMES A. MILLS

Shanghai, Aug. 20 (AP)—An American sailor was killed tonight and 18 were wounded when the cruiser Augusta, flagship of the United States Asiatic fleet, was struck by an anti-aircraft shell in the midst of terrific Chinese-Japanese artillery and aerial warfare along the Whangpoo river.

Fire crackled in a fourth of all Shanghai at the time.

The sailor killed was Freddie John Falgout of Raceland, La. None of the wounded was badly hurt.

The American flagship, which has been lying in the Whangpoo a little below the heart of Shanghai to cover evacuation of some 2000 American refugees, was struck at 6:40 p. m., while most of the officers and crew were at mess. Otherwise, casualties probably would have been greater.

SHANGHAI IN FLAMES

One-fourth of Shanghai was burning, the result of savage Chinese airbombings of Japanese properties in Pootung and the Hongkew district, and Chinese land batteries blasting at Japanese defense lines in the eastern district.

American-owned buildings were believed engulfed in the flames, which spread over wide areas unchecked.

The artillery duel between Japanese warships and Chinese shore batteries was the fiercest of the eight-day-old battle for Shanghai. The International Settlement rocked to the detonations.

Three shells, believed to be from Chinese batteries in northern Shanghai, had fallen near the Augusta shortly before she was

Sugar Quota Bill to White House

Washington, Aug. 20 (INS)—The House today adopted a conference report on the Jones-O'Mahoney sugar bill and tossed the measure into the lap of President Roosevelt to await an uncertain fate.

The vote was 198 to 22.

While Rep. Jones (D) Texas, recently told the House the bill would be vetoed, if quotas on refined sugar from Hawaii and Puerto Rico were maintained, Congress, however, refused to remove them.

2 Die, Hottest Aug. 20 in Boston's History

Heat caused two deaths and many prostrations today as the temperature broke all records for this date and the weather bureau predicted a possible high of 100 degrees.

This was the hottest August 20 in the 66 years' history of the Boston bureau.

With the mercury at 97 at 2 p. m., Assistant Meteorologist Mark T. Nesmith said it might reach 100. The highest figure ever set was 104 on July 4, 1911.

Heat and oppressive humidity brought death to Charles W. Short, secretary of the Springfield Central Labor Union, and Clarence F. Prouty, 44, a Springfield filling station attendant.

As early as 11 a. m. the mercury reached 91, exceeding by 1 degree the previous record for this date, established in 1883, or 54 years ago.

It was the first time this summer the temperature was over 90 before noon.

New Bedford, Aug. 20—Attacking "active agents who will seize any opportunity to incite a spirit of revolt against orderly government," Governor Hurley today called on Massachusetts legionnaires for a solid front in the fight for democracy.

The first World War veteran governor addressing the second day's session in the three-day state convention, high-lighted the anti-Communistic theme which has been characteritic of this annual meeting.

"Twenty years have elapsed since the great conflict known as the World War was fought," said Governor Hurley. "America's entrance and participation was inspired by a lofty principle.

New Move to Banish Guidebook

HURLEY PLANS PROTEST TO ROOSEVELT

The state librarian said it would then be up to the Governor to release such portions as he saw fit.

HITS 3 SECTIONS

Despite the state librarian's reticence, the Boston Evening American learned that the written report to the governor would contain a scathing denunciation of the "partisan tone" of the volume.

It was learned that Dooley's denunciation would be directed particularly at the chapters entitled "Enough of Its History to Explain Its People," "Labor" and "Clues to Its Character."

Other chapters which may come under the librarians censure are devoted to various cities and towns in the second section of the book, such as those covering "Lawrence."

Since Governor Hurley will spend tonight in New Bedford, he will not receive the report until tomorrow and will act then.

Meanwhile, promises of Reed Harris, acting national director of the Federal Writers' Project, that he would authorize a stop order on a second edition of the book, had apparently been broken.

DISCLAIMS AUTHORITY

Joseph Gaer, regional director of the project in New England, arrived at the Huntington avenue headquarters of the writers shortly before noon, but he disclaimed having any power to take a part in the controversy.

At the headquarters of WPA Administrator Colonel John J. McDonough, the wire which Harris had promised Congressman John W. McCormack—authorizing a stop on the second printing of the book—had not arrived.

It was stated there that Colonel McDonough was not even expecting such a message since his state bureau is in no way concerned with the writers' project.

Colonel McDonough, according to Harris, would empower Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook to withhold copyright permission on this second printing of 15,000 volumes of the guidebook "pending corrections."

Since Secretary Cook, like Governor Hurley, has been placed in the embarrassing position of having indorsed the book without knowledge of its controversial passages, it is a foregone conclusion that Cook would hold up the second edition.

Word that this action would be taken came from Congressman John W. McCormack in Washington. In a telegram to the Boston Evening American, the Congressman said:

"I have contacted Reed Harris, in charge of the Writers' Project in the absence of National Director Henry G. Alsberg, and have brought to his attention the complaints in Massachusetts that there were reflections in the book on our state courts and that the Boston Tea Party and other important historical events have been dismissed in a few lines.

DENIES SPONSORSHIP

"Harris informed me that while the WPA sponsored the work, the publication sponsor, known as the 'cooperative sponser' was Secretary of State Cook."

(Secretary Cook indignantly denied that he had ever been given to understand that he was "sponsoring" the guidebook. He said that he had only been given galley proofs to look at and that the contract with the publishers had already been signed by the WPA when he got the proofs.)

"Harris stated," the telegram from Congressman McCormack continued, "that he would wire Colonel McDonough, state WPA administrator, to the effect that the Secretary of State might withhold publication of the additional printing of 15,000 copies, pending corrections that might be made.

"This is an important thing to have accomplished now to prevent circulation of any additional copies containing slurring remarks about our courts, and incomplete statements about any Massachusetts historical events, particularly the Boston Tea Party and Boston Massacre."

"The reaction both in England and America to this wanton destruction of property was one of instant revulsion . . ."

While Harris was quoted from other sources as calling the controversy over the guidebook "silly," Congressman McCormack said that he found Harris "very co-operative and that he was "sorry that any part of the publication had brought about the reaction" it has.

Congressman Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Attleboro, stated that he would follow the lead of U. S. Senators Walsh and Lodge in demanding an investigation and explanation of the reflections against Massachusetts justice contained in the reference to the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

"Controversial questions of this character contained in a guidebook of this type are an insult," Congressman Martin declared.

The possibility was seen that there may be complete revision of the volume, entitled "Massachusetts: A Guide to Its Places and People," before more copies are allowed to come off the presses.

Another portion of the book that came in for caustic criticism today was that devoted to Massachusetts labor and industries.

State Commissioner of Labor and Industries James T. Moriarty pointed out that while "labor conditions in this state are as good, if not better than those in other industrial states," the guidebook gives a far different impression.

The section on labor goes into a lengthy report of the various strikes that have troubled the state at various times, particularly stressing the Lawrence textile strike of 1912.

It relates at length the bloodshed and use of national guardsmen in the disorders of that strike.

Flatly, the guidebook charges, but repeats as a historic fact, that the strike was brought on by manufacturers cutting pay when the law was passed reducing the working hours of women.

It asserts that the pay reductions were "in retaliation" for the provisions of this law.

BLAST FROM LAWRENCE

Representative Siroiss took particular exception to the treatment that was given his city under the heading of "Lawrence" on pages 250-253.

"As a member of the special legislative commission investigating subversive propaganda and activities in the state," he said in a letter to Governor Hurley, "I urge your excellency to confer immediately with Commissioner of Public Safety Paul Kirk.

"Have the state police seized all outstanding copies (of the guidebook) in its present form . . . I make this drastic request after comparing the chapter on Lawrence with the true history of the city.

CITES RESENTMENT

"If we in Massachusetts," he concluded, "are to be pilloried upon the martyrdom of Sacco and Vanzetti and the anti-God, anti-law leadership of the IWW, if this is to be the Federal Government's contribution to our history, I say with the court criers—"God Save the Commonwealth of Massachusetts!' "

Councillor Wilson declared that "all American citizens deeply resent the use of Federal money for distorting the history of the past," and that perhaps this guidebook was a new method of aiding Communism here.

"Perhaps, instead of sending cash to Europe," he asserted, those WPA workers interested in Communism had better send copies of the book to their friends there."

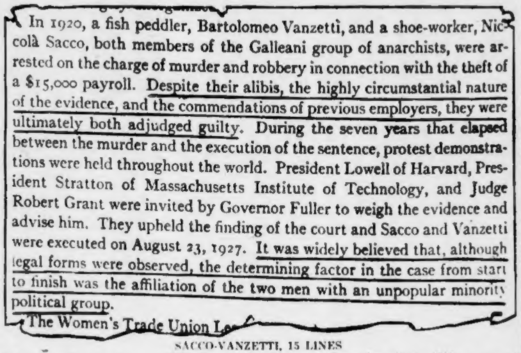
JOHN V. MAHONEY

Does His Reading "In Line of Duty"

John V. Mahoney, secretary to Governor Hurley, seems to be able to read the Works Progress Administration's newly-published book, "Massachusetts, a Guide to Its Places and People," without tearing his hair. Less calm about the volume are most of the state's officials and court justices. They feel Works Progress Administration writers and editors used the guide book as an organ of propaganda. Cited as evidence of bias ahd repeated passages harping on the Sacco-Vanzetti case and intimating that the executed men were the victims of class hatred. Reproduced here are two such passages and another dismissing the historic Boston Massacre in three brief lines.

'DETOURS' IN GUIDE BOOK



In 1920, a fish peddler, Bartolomeo Vanzetti, and a shoe-worker, Niccolà Sacco, both members of the Galleani group of anarchists, were arrested on the charge of murder and robbery in connection with the theft of a $15,000 payroll. Despite their alibis, the highly circumstantial nature of the evidence, and the commendations of previous employers, they were ultimately both adjudged guilty. During the seven years that elapsed between the murder and the execution of the sentence, protest demonstrations were held throughout the world. President Lowell of Harvard, President Stratton of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Judge Robert Grant were invited by Governor Fuller to weigh the evidence and advise him. They upheld the finding of the court and Sacco and Vanzetti were executed on August 23, 1927. It was widely believed that, although legal forms were observed, the determining factor in the case from start to finish was the affiliation of the two men with an unpopular minority political group.

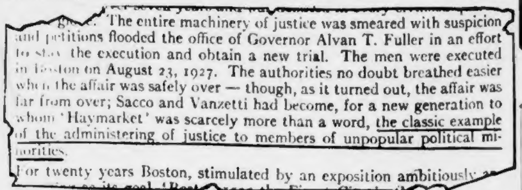
"Determining factor . . . affiliation . . . with unpopular minority"—Who says so?



The entire machinery of justice was smeared with suspicion and petitions flooded the office of Governor Alvan T. Fuller in an effort to stay the execution and obtain a new trial. The men were executed in Boston on August 23, 1927. The authorities no doubt breathed easier when the affair was safely over — though, as it turned out, the affair was far from over; Sacco and Vanzetti had become, for a new generation to whom 'Haymarket' was scarcely more than a word, the classic example of the administering of justice to members of unpopular political minorities.

with millions of other staunch Americans to safeguard the great democracy established by the heroic men of 1776.

"This great organization, composed of veterans of that war, has dedicated itself to a peacetime service which in essence perpetuates the great fundamental principles for which America fought.

"Let us constantly keep before ourselves the clear-cut statement of our aims and purposes, so beautifully set forth in the preamble to the constitution of the American Legion.

"Remind ourselves at such times of the opening sentence of our preamble: 'For God and country, we associate ourselves together for the following purposes, to uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America'

ACKNOWLEDGES GOD

"Remind ourselves of the constitutional guarantee of the free exercise of religion, and recall the preamble to our State of Massachusetts constitution, which reverently acknowledges the existthanks to Him and gives grateful thanks to Him as hhe origin of man's opportunity to attain life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

"And now, comrades, let me say here what I have said on a previous occasion—that there is a spirit of unrest on many sides here in America and that there are not wanting active agents who will seize any opportunity to incite a sporit of revolt against the constituted authority of orderly government.

"You and I realize that democracy is the form of government which requires the greatest amount of willing obedience from the people, because democracy does not rely on force.

Therefore, it is for you, and for me, as true Legionnaires, to present to the people, so far as we are able to do so, a body of laws and the administration thereof which will deserve to earn the largest measure of willing obedience from the people."

OVATION TO GOVERNOR

Governor Hurley was wearing his Legion uniform as he addressed his fellow legionaires, and his full military staff had accompanied him from Boston to New Bedford, where 600 delegates in the high school auditorium gave him a 10-minute ovation.

The heat in the auditorium was terrific and several delegates were compelled to leave during the session because of the temperature.

The anti-Communism note was struck first yesterday in the address of State Auditor Thomas H. Buckley, who called upon the Legionnaires to defeat the aims of Communism if America is to be retained for Americans.

"We should defeat any group," said Buckley, "whose aim is to involve this nation in foreign alliances or to destroy the very foundations of our government.

"We have been prone to disregard the Communistic element in our nation, feeling that their aims could not succeed. Its lack of public strength, however, has not prevented this group from activity in nearly every industrial conflict.

"BE READY FOR ACTION"

"Be ready then, as American citizens with the honor of having served your country, to act in opposition to movements designed to embroil this nation in European wars, and be equally ready to defend this nation against foes within our borders."

After gay reunions, lasting into the early morning hours, delegates to the convention settled down to business sessions today—second of the three.

One of the chief topics of interest was a resolution introduced yesterday condemning Massachusetts officials who refuse to give veterans preference in allotting Works Progress Administration jobs, which was due for action today.

Most colorful of events on the day's roster was the get-together of the "40 and 8" in its "cheminot" meeting at noon, the "grande promenade" at 2 p. m., initiation at 4 p. m., and the annual parade at 9 p. m.

WATER CARNIVAL

A water carnival was planned for this afternoon at municipal beach and the annual military ball this evening in the State Armory.

"Candidating" took on added fervor today, preparatory to office elections tomorrow. The most active contest is for the post of deparment commander, between Raymond E. McEvoy of Stoughton and Mayland T. Lewis of Nahant.

There are campaigns for the five posts of departmental vice-commander, Richard Cunningham of Boston, John Maguire of Watertown and Daniel Foley of Charlestown are working hard for popular support.

Today various county councils elected officers:

They included: Norfolk county, Philip Wallace, Brookline, commander; Robert H. Luce, Dedham, vice-commander; Worcester county, Harry E. Lees, commander; John Conway, vice-commander; Franklin-Hampshire counties, Dr. J. M. Murphy, commander; Roy L. Bickford, vice-commander; Berkshire county, Harold Herrick, Dalton, commander; Eugene Murphy, Pittsfield, vice-commander.

Essex county, Joseph Hines, Swampscott, commander; Cornelius Kelleher, Salem, vice commander; Hampden county, Thomas F. Burke, Springfield, commander; Arnold P. Estelle, West Springfield, vice commander.

Bristol county, Dr. E. Lester Merritt, Fall River, commander; Linwood S. Newell, vice commander; Middlesex county, George Flynn, Natick, commander; Daniel Shay, North Reading, vice commander; Dukes, Barnstable, Plymouth, Nantucket counties, Myron W. Baxter, Wareham, commander; Dr. John H. Hall, vice commander.

FRANCO NEARS SANTANDER

"It's only a question of days," said French and Belgian citizens who arrived at Bayonne from Santander, last important city-stronghold of the national government in northwest Spain.

These refugees said famine faced the city, because it was impossible to get food through the insurgent blockade.

The generalissimo's communique said his forces met strong resistance in all sectors on the Santander front, with government troops reinforced by thousands of men rushed from the Asturias.

President Skips Maine Fishing Trip

Washington, Aug. 20 (AP)—President Roosevelt has made so far only two post-Congress engagements.

He told reporters today he expected to motor to Sharpsburg, Md., September 17, to attend a celebration commemorating the 75th anniversary of the Civil War battle of Antietam. He will not make a speech there.

The other engagement will be a Thanksgiving party at Warm Springs, Ga.

He said he had made no plans for a trip to the West Coast, and there was no chances of his taking a fishing trip off the Maine coast. Within ten days after Congress quits he expects to go to his family estate at Hyde Park, N. Y.

35-Cent Garment Wage Fixed in R. I.

Providence, Aug. 20 (AP)—Thomas F. McMahon, state director of labor, today accepted the report of the minimum wage board for the garment industry and issued an order effective October 18 requiring employers in that industry to pay no less than 35 cents an hour to women and children.

Action followed a study of conditions in the wearing apparel and allied industries by a minimum wage board as provided by law, which recommended the 35-cent hourly minimum rate.

Grave Gives Evidence of Slaying

24-Year-Old Skull Exhibited to Jury

Inez, Ky., Aug. 20 (AP)—From the purported grave of James A. Watterson, who died 24 years ago, came evidence today with which the commonwealth sought to prove its contention the lumber camp superintendent was shot to death and did not succumb to a heart attack.

The grim exhibit was a human skull, perforated in the back. That hole, the state said, was caused by a bullet fired from a gun held by Harvey Hardin, 48, on trial for murder.

Over defense objections, the skull was admitted as evidence and passed among the jurors to examine.

JEALOUSLY CLAIMED

The defense tried to bring out that the perforation had been made by a small piece of wood, but Dr. H. Hawes and Dr. J. H. Holdbrook, state witnesses, said it would have been impossible.

Attempting to build up its claim Hardin was "jealous" of Watterson's attentions to the camp cook, Mrs. Polly Runyon Shuranofsky, the commonwealth produced Clyde Preece, Chattaroy, W. V., who testified that the night Watterson died, Mrs. Shuranofsky did not occupy her quarters in the superintendent's bunkhouse.

DAUGHTER GAVE FACTS

Mrs. Shuranofsky was charged jointly with Hardin, but she won a separate trial.

The case was reported last spring when Mrs. Viola Runyan Harless, daughter of Mrs. Shuranofsky, told her husband that as a girl of nine she saw Hardin kill Watterson.

She later gave the grand jury the same story. She said she had not discussed the case before because no one asked her about it.

Boston Art Expert In War-Torn China

Firm in the belief that she is safe, relatives of Alice Maginnis of Dean road, Brookline, lecturer at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, now in war-torn Shanghai, awaited word from her today. Efforts to communicate with her have proved futile.

Miss Maginnis, an authority of Oriental art, was a member of the group whose leader, Dr. Robert K. Reischauer of Princeton, was killed by a Chinese air bomb. There were nine others in the group. She has been traveling in the Orient since July 3rd on a scholarship from a Japanese-American society.

TAYLOR DRAWS LABOR PROTEST

A protest to Governor Hurley on the appointment of Kenneth I. Taylor, legislative agent of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor, to membership in the State Labor Relations Board was received at the State House today from the Boston unit of the Independent Brotherhood of Steam and Electrical Engineers.

In a letter to the Governor, H. C. Comerford, secretary of the union, charged that Taylor is "biased in his dealings with labor organizations not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor."

Taylor was nominated with former Congressman Michael F. Phelan of Lynn and former Representative Patrick J. Sullivan of Boston as members of the commission, created to enforce the "Baby Wagner" act.

Middle-Age Perils For Men Outlined

New York, Aug. 20 (INS)—Maxine Davis, writing in September Pictorial Review-Delineator, calls upon wives of men over 45 years old to aid in saving their husbands from the five diseases that threaten men in middle age.

These diseases, which have increased 54 per cent during the past 35 years, are heart disease, kidney disease, high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries and arthritis.

Miss Davis writes:

"There are only two people who can make a man apply the brakes; his wife and his physician. And, as a rule, a man will not consult his physician unless something frightens him, or unless his wife nags him into it. Such visits are vital, if these diseases are to be circumvented and controlled."

Policeman Dying From Shot in Head

Springfield, Aug. 20—Motorcycle Officer James V. Pease of the park police was found today shot through the head with his own service revolver in his home on Wilmot street, and at Wesson Memorial Hospital surgeons said the wound would be fatal.

Police said the .38 caliber revolver was found by the side of the officer, who is 49 and married.

Manville Hits Reno Divorce Plans of Wife

TOMMY MANVILLE

While the Reno attorney, for Mrs. Marcella Edwards Manville, fourth wife of the asbestos heir, announced that she will file suit for divorce within a few weeks, Mrs. Manville herself cancelled a proposed flight to Reno from Newark airport.

SIGNED NO PAPER

"Listen, I haven't signed any paper yet. Sure, she's going, but she hasn't got the paper. She hasn't anything."

Crux of the money controversy between them, Manville said, is that Marcella wants him to pay the government tax on her stock, when and if she sells it.

"I offered cash—I won't say how much—but she wants stock. That's all right with me, cash or stock, but here's the joker. She wants me to pay the tax on it when she sells it, regardless of when that may be. I won't agree to that."

The divorce idea has never bothered him one way or the other for some time, Tommy confessed.

"I agreed to a divorce three days after I married her," he laughed.

After that, they separated several times, and once Marcelle made a trip to Reno, to start divorce proceedings.

DOESN'T LIKE PACT

"My lawyers and her's have been holding conferences, and they reached a settlement," he said. "But I don't like it, and I'll not sign any paper."

Meanwhile, Mrs. Manville, the former Marcelle Edwards, cancelled for the present plans to go to Reno by plane.

"It's getting so a lady can't take a trip west without being suspected of intentions to change her marital status," she objected.

Besides, she didn't like some of the newspaper headlines saying Tommy would pay a million dollars for a C. O. D. wedding.

"If she went to Reno now, people might put the wrong interpretation on it," her New York attorney, Carl Helm, said.

It's just a temporary delay, however, according to former District Judge George A. Bartlett of Reno.

Admitting that he had been retained as counsel for Mrs. Manville, Judge Bartlett said she had merely delayed her trip, and will file a divorce suit for certain before many weeks pass.

International News Photograph Service

Reports that the fourth Mrs. Tommy Manville (above) is planning a Reno divorce, were uncontradicted today by her jovial, multi-millionaire husband (in circle). Asbestos-Heir Manville laughed heartily when asked if it were true he agreed to give his blonde wife $250,000 plus her freedom. "I've signed no agreement and I'm not going to sign one," he insisted. Mrs. Manville No. 4 is the former Marcelle Edwards.

Guardsmen Join In Constitution Day Parade

Every National Guardsman in the state, marching in one phalanx, has been called to take part in a gigantic parade on Septemeber 17, observing the 150th anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution of the United States.

Plans for the greatest array of civic and military orders ever assembled, marching in the parade, have been advanced by the Massachusetts Sesquicentennial Commission.

And if plans of the commission go through, khaki-clad cadets of every school in Boston will take part. The commission has asked that the Boston school committee permit the cadets to join the celebration.

Younger children throughout the school system will be given educational programs and pictures to impress upon them the importance of the Constitution in United States history, with the co-operation of James G. Reardon, state commissioner of education.

Honeymoon Cash Taken by Thief

Scenna will marry Mrs. Agatha Gentile, a widow, of Main street, Everett, a week from tomorrow. The theft will not stop the nuptials, he said.

Launch Largest Dredge Tuesday

The largest dredge ever built, named after General George Washington Goethals, constructor of the Panama Canal, will be launched at Fore River next Tuesday.

It was built for the U. S. Army engineer department and will be christened by Miss Elizabeth E. Pillsbury, daughter of General G. B. Pillsbury. Mrs. Goethals, widow of the famous engineer, is expected to be in the launching party.

GIRLS' LAX MORALS BLAMED ON PARENTS

Dallas, Aug. 20 (AP)—Not from the crowded cities with all their bright lights, but from the rural districts come 75 per cent of the unwed mothers, Colonel Mary Stillwell, retired Salvation Army leader, said today.

A rising tide of loose living, especially among younger women, can be stemmed only in "religion and the church," she declared.

"I used to think the girls had come to big cities and were the innocent prey of traps. Now I know that virtually all of them have fallen in their home communities and come to the city to hide their shame.

"Unmarried mothers differ greatly now from the class we used to get," she said. "Once they were from the underprivileged class. Now we have a thick sprinkling of high school graduates, college girls and even trained nurses."

For the parents of these women Colonel Stillwell, the mother of eight children, had bitter words.

"The mothers come to see them, without shame at their condition. They smoke, are rouged and powdered, talk loudly. Their letters have no depth of character."

Most parents neglect to explain the facts of life to their children, who thereupon find out for themselves, often "in the worst way possible," Colonel Stillwell added.

Roosevelt Beat Him, Too, Says Cameraman

Cannes, France, Aug. 20 (INS)—Stepping into the now famous champagne and bouquet incident involving John Roosevelt and Mayor Pierre Nouveau of Cannes, a hungarian photographer complained to the United States government today that he had been mistreated by the President's youngest son during the "battle of the flowers" here Sunday night.

In a letter addressed to Ambassador William C. Bullitt in Paris, Jean Jyenes charged young Roosevelt not only struck him with water-soaked flowers but also partially ruined his camera.

"During Sunday's 'battle of flowers,'" he wrote, "I requested Mr. Roosevelt to pose for a picture.

"He was furious over the request and struck me over the head with a large bouquet to which were attached two large nails. These inflicted wounds at the base of my skull, which caused me great agony and required medical attention.

"Mr. Roosevelt then dipped the flowers in a champagne bucket and struck my camera, ruining the plates and lens.

"Since photography is my profession, and my father is not President of the United States, it means my livelihood. Mr. Roosevelt's position does not excuse his conduct or recompense me for my loss."

Garbage Protest

Dorchester residents today planned a concerted protest against the removal and disposal of garbage, which they term a menace to the health of the public.

FRENCH Dubious of 'SKUNK'

DID WIFE MEAN A PET NAME?

Newport, R. I., Aug. 20—Frank O. French, who scorns the glittering mansion of his son-in-law, John Jacob Astor 3rd, embraced the rustic life here today as things reached a pretty pass—well, make it impasse—in his domestic life.

The question became this: Is "You skunk" a term of endearment?

Rumors were flying thick and fast through the Newport fog to the effect that Mary Cleneay French, the rugged individualist's estranged wife, who left him recently, was returning to his humble one room in a cottage on the fringe of things, but French believed she had quit him for good.

SOCIETY IDEA

"I don't think she wants any part of me," he said cheerfully. "After all, she called me a skunk, didn't she? Does that sound like she likes me?"

The reporter admitted this did not sound like a pet name. Said French:

"I think she got mad at me for becoming bankrupt. She has society ideas, too, poor girl. She was once in the Social Register in Cincinnati."

WIFE WITH CHILDREN

Cheerfully, he contemplates writing a volume dealing with activities in society's uppercrust. Several years ago, he sought to supplement his depleted income by driving a taxicab in New York City.

Mrs. French, in Boston with her four children by a previous husband, was quoted as saying she was "willing" to go back to her husband if he would "seek her out."

He is spending his time writing his magazine piece—he writes in a night gown, bathrobe, and furlined slippers—swimming (but not on the platinum sands of Bailey's beach) and taking long walks in the woods.

Weather Man 'Under the Weather'

Pittsfield, Aug. 20 (AP)—The local weather man was under the weather today—a victim of the heat.

Arthur B. Farnham, commissioner of public works, reported that his clerk, Louis B. Cummings, who also is official weather forecaster at City Hall, was confined to his home by illness, induced by the heat.

POLICE LINES AS "3-ALARM IDOL" HITS N. Y.

They're changing Puck's famous words to "What fools these women be" since Robert Taylor hit New York. Here's the way his feminine admirers looked after he passed by—giddy, and keeping the police lines, such as are usually reserved for three-alarm fires and big crimes, right on their toes. Taylor is leaving tomorrow for England and maybe some of the heat'll be over then. Police hope so, anyway, and probably he does, too.

La Hepburn Hunts House, So It Looks Like Love

Old Saybrook, Ct., Aug. 20—Yes, it must be love. And there must be going to be a wedding.

Katharine Hepburn's daddy was discovered today to be house-hunting—and for Katharine.

And as the film star and Howard Hughes, millionaire airman and movie producer, were yacht-shopping only a couple of days ago—it looks like love.

KEYNOTE ADDRESS BY JAMES ROOSEVELT

Indianapolis, Aug. 20 (AP)—James Roosevelt, delivering the keynote address today at the biennial convention of the Young Democratic Clubs of America, said:

"In four short months your party transformed a pseudo-democracy that couldn't work into a real democracy that did work.

"It has not only pulled the country out of the slough of despond but actually has rebuilt it on a higher and firmer ground than it occupied in the lush days of 1929 itself."

SEES NATION REBUILT

The son of President Roosevelt who serves his father as secretary said the nation had been rebuilt by "re-direction, given by common sense governmental policy, to that constant willingness of the great majority of people to work hard and play the game with each other."

"The difference between our people in March, 1933, and in August, 1937, is a difference in direction only—in direction by government and our party can be everlastingly proud that it proved its faith that there is a way to give our people that direction without asking them to surrender their democracy as the price of security."

Roosevelt said young people should rally to the Democratic party because it believes democracy is not compelled to be fatalistic about the economic cycle any more than about yellow fever or the bubonic plague.

JOB TO MAKE GOOD

"It is our job," he said "to make good in this country the promise of tomorrow's world, but building a better nation is not blowing a dream castle from soap bubbles. It is the hardest work man does.

"To make progress in our generation will take all the devotion and energy of the thousands you delegates represent, coordinated and given direction through this organization, fitted to our hand if we have the will and wit to use it."

Taylor Is 'Ah-Uh' About Romance With Stanwyck

New York, Aug. 20 (INS)—Robert Taylor, male version of America's sweetheart, was still giving interviews today but he hadn't admitted yet—absolutely definitely—that the love in his life is Barbara Stanwyck.

"Well, ah—uh," Taylor stammered and blushed.

"Well, aren't you?" the interviewer bawled.

"Well, everybody knows that Miss Stanwyck is perhaps my closest friend in Hollywood. I've known her longer. We're better friends . . ." and the screen lover simply trailed off.

Taylor plans to leave for England on the Berengaria on Saturday.

WHOSE HONEY IS HONEY, HUH?

"HONEY" JOHNSON JESSE LIVERMORE

New York reporters couldn't quite figure whose honey Heiress Muriel "Honey" Johnson was, when she and wealthy young Jesse Livermore, Jr., holding hands, as above, joined in denying "Honey's" reported engagement to Prince David Mdivani. Livermore said he introduced "Honey" and Mdivani and they were "crazy about each other" for a while. But as for marrying—"Why, I'd marry her myself," Livermore assured interviewers. The newspaper man in the background has a look on his face which seems to say, "Oh, yeah, and so what?"

Andrew Mellon Ill On New York Visit

Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 20 (INS)—Andrew W. Mellon, internationally known banker and former Secretary of the Treasury, is so ill that he is unable to leave the home here of his son-in-law, David K. E. Bruce, it was learned today.

Mellon, 82-year-old aluminum magnate, came here from Washington three months ago and has ben unable to leave the house since because of his infirmities.

Farnum Ill, Codman Probe Postponed

The Finance Commission's public investigation of the Codman Hill Construction Company and its business dealings with the city was postponed today until Monday, due to illness of special counsel George R. Farnum.

Mayor Mansfield, who agreed to the postponement, will present two Finance Commission employes as witnesses Monday morning, unless a new delay becomes necessary.

McGrady to Quit as Roosevelt Aide

Washington, Aug. 20 (INS)—President Roosevelt is losing his ace trouble shooter.

Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady of Boston, kingpin of the New Deal's administrative setup on labor affairs, will resign "some time before Labor Day," it was learned today.

McGrady already has made arrangements to take a lucrative position with a huge radio manufacturing and broadcasting company, persons close to the concern said.

The report was verified by confidants of McGrady, who said a formal announcement of the resignation will be made within a few days.

Shell Hits U. S. Cruiser In China; 19 Casualties

NAVAL CHIEF DEFIES JAPAN

hit. Another fell less than 100 yards astern shortly after.

Her crew of 800 was ordered to remain below decks as much as possible. Similar precautions were taken by the United States destroyers Edsall and Parrott and other foreign naval ships off Shanghai.

ADMIRAL DEFIES JAPAN

Some prepared to move to safer anchorages.

The Augusta, 9050-ton, $10,000,000 flagship of Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commander-in-chief of the Asiatic fleet, had stood by earlier today as the Parrott and Edsall and Dollar Line tenders carried 1100 United States refugees down the Whangpoo to the Dollar liner President Hoover, bound for Manila.

Admiral Yarnell had told the Japanese navy concisely that American vessels would navigate the Whangpoo whenever and however he wished, without reference to the Japanese, who had asked him to give advance notice if any United States craft were to move on the river after dark.

At 10:30 p. m. (10:30 a. m., E. D. T.) the Shanghai nInternational Settlement was rocked as if in an earthquake by the savage artillery duel over the Whangpoo. Chinese batteries well to the south of the settlement were exchanging shells with Japanese warships on the river and projectiles screamed over the foreign-held parts of the city.

FOURTH AMERICAN SLAIN

A Japanese warship similarly darkened fired from a position close to the Augusta Wednesday night.

The fires which raged into the night over much of the city's area had mostly been started in late afternoon when Chinese airbombers and artillery struck savagely at Japanese properties on both sides of the Whangpoo.

The sailor casualty was the fourth American to be killed in the eight days of war in Shanghai. Three United States citizens died last Saturday when misplaced Chinese air bombs wrecked buildings in the international area and killed more than a thousand persons.

FLAMES RING CITY

At nightfall fires seemed to ring the whole horizon, as seen from tall buildings on Shanghai's famous Bund. A fourth of the city was ablaze.

The war came closer to Americans as Japanese shells fell on the border of the French concession—where most American residents have their homes—and other shells struck on the river.

The whole Pootung waterfront, teeming industrial area just across the river from the heart of Shanghai, was in flames, the result of heavy bombing of Japanese property by Chinese planes.

A large section of the Hongkew district to the north was burning furiously. This section, now largely Japanese, was the American concession for a few years in the 19th century.

FURIOUS AIR BATTLE

As the bombardments from air and land became more savage late in the afternoon, Japanese and Chinese war planes fought a thrilling battle directly over the city.

Three Chinese planes roared over Pootung, and dropped eight bombs on Japanese-owned wharves, warehouses and cottonmills, which burst into flames.

AMERICANS IN FLIGHT

In the midst of the air bombardment, Chinese shells from a concealed rooftop position in the Chinese city, adjoining the French concession, crashed into Japanese-held sectors of the Whangpoo river shores.

The detonations shook the entire city. American's and other foreigners raced indoors. Sailors on the U. S. S. Augusta and other ships of the international fleet took cover.

Chinese forces, attempting to drive the Japanese into the Whangpoo, apparently held the Japanese along the river's banks in northeastern Shanghai. Chinese artillery repulsed a Japanese effort to land a flanking detachment at Liuho, 12 miles northwest of Shanghai.

While a curtain of flying shrapnel blanketed the Whangpoo, United States warships were pressed into service to help evacuate 1000 American refugees.

SPLIT JAPANESE LINES

Independent reports from the battle area said Chinese had not yielded an inch of their gains, and that the Chinese attack had split the Japanese lines.

Far to the north of Shanghai, Chinese armies, at least 100,000 strong, were reported to have French ordered the steel gates barred, and placed armed guards on every corner in the vicinity.

The American answer to the Japenese navy was the second time in as many days American officials had told the Japanes navy it must keep hands off the right of the United States to unrestricted use of the Whangpoo—the only avenue of escape for Americans and other foreigners fleeing the battle between China and Japan for Shanghai.

Because of the heavy fighting between shore batteries and Japanese warships in the Whangpoo, the Japanese navy undertook yesterday to close the Pootung side of the river to navigation and subject navigation on the Hongkew side to restrictions.

U. S. CONSUL REFUSES

United States Consul General Clarence E. Gauss replied the United States could not permit such a move and today 1100 Americans made a precarious voyage to safety on the fire-swept river.

Chinese and Japanese warplanes battled above the river and the big guns of the Japanese fleet threw shell after shell screaming over the heads of the fleeing Americans. Rapid-fire bursts from the Japanese anti-aircraft batteries sprayed in huge vertical cones and then rained down to churn the gloomy river.

In the early morning the American refugees began swarming down the bund to the customs jetty, launched a general offensive to wrest from Japanese invaders conquered areas of North China.

The northern assault was designed to force Japanese armies out of Tientain and Peiping.

A Japanese announcement from Peiping said Octogenarian General Chiang Chao-Tsung, formerly chairman of the Japanese-created peace preservation committee, had assumed mayoralty of the city.

Appointment of Chiang, who once commanded the Empress Dowager's bannermen and imperial guards, was interpreted by foreigners as meaning possible return of the old Manchu regime, extending the domain of Manchoukuo southward into North China under Japan's protection.

FRENCH TROOPS ON GUARD

In Shanghai late today Chinese mobs grew increasingly threatening. French soldiers mounted machine guns about the Japanese ambassador's residence in the French concession. Fearing Chinese might attempt to rush the building, the crowding aboard the Dollar Line tenders and the two destroyers for the ten-mile voyage to the Yangtze estuary and the liner President Hoover anchored off Woosung.

Women and children struggled with their own loads of baggage under a sweltering sun which made the waterfront blazingly hot even at 8 a. m. A thick haze overhung the river, adding stifling humidity to the heat.

IN U. S. BUILT PLANES

As the Dollar Line tender, bearing 400 refugees, proceeded slowly down stream, the Stars and Stripes fluttered out fore and aft and amidships from the majestic Augusta, easily the finest warcraft in the harbor. Suddenly a squadron of Chinese bombers—swift, American-made machines—appeared over the tender.

Japanese warships nearby unloosed their savage barrage of anti-aircraft fire that made the river hideous with flying shrapnel.

A small guard of tin-hatted American marines smiled nonchalantly as the showers of hot lead whizzed overhead. The American women and children on the tender displayed remarkable calmness and courage under fire.

At the first burst of shelling the commanding officer ordered full speed ahead. A few minutes behind the Hoover's tender came the American destroyer, loaded to the guard rails with refugees.

As Uncle Sam's refugee fleet disappeared into the haze, it passed an unending line of Japanese cruisers and destroyers stripped for action.

Late China Bulletins

London, Aug. 20 (INS)—Advancing Chinese troops have driven Japanese forces into the International Settlement north of Soochow Creek, the Chinese Embassy here announced today on the basis of a Shanghai dispatch received at 4 p. m.

Shanghai, Aug. 20 (INS)—Two huge Japanese bombing planes collided and exploded in mid-air during the terrific aerial battle over this city today, according to reports here. It was assumed all occupants of both planes were killed.

Shanghai, Aug. 20 (INS)—Settlement police threw up barricades on the International Bund tonight, as Chinese troops pushed forward in their drive toward the river. The Japanese lines were threatened with disintegration.

Chinese Army Headquarters, Aug. 20 (INS)—Hostilities in Shanghai will end shortly with a "smashing victory for the Chinese forces," General Chang Chi-Shung, Chinese commander-in-chief, asserted in a statement tonight.

Roosevelt Lets Admiral Handle Bombing Incident

Washington, Aug. 20 (AP)—that whatever action was deemed advisable in connection with the shelling of the cruiser Augusta off Shanghai would be determined by officials on the ground there.

The President told a press conference he had received only fragmentary unofficial dispatches on the shelling.

1100 AMERICANS FLEE BOMBS

Asked what this would mean as far as any counter action was concerned, the President said such things were almost bound to happen in a situation such as that at Shanghai.

In response to other questions, he said official Washington was talking every day about the advisability of invoking the neutrality act.

EXPECT ADMIRAL'S PROTEST

Naval attaches said today they expected Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commander of the Asiatic fleet, to protest sharply the explosion of the shell on the Augusta.

It was understood the protest probably would be made to both China and Japan.

As word of the shelling spread around Capitol Hill, legislators were slow to comment on its possible significance.

Chairman McReynolds (D.) of Tennessee of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said the incident was "unfortunate," but that he believed the President was right in not yet having invoked the neutrality act.

MARTIN FOR EVACUATION

Representative Martin (R.), of Massachusetts, said:

> "The incident shows the necessity of getting Americans out of the war zone as quickly as possible? or we may be drawn into the fray."

Individuals applying to the State Department for passports to China are being told passports will not be issued except in extraordinary cases. In no case are passports being issued to women and children.

Japanese Air Bombers Rain Death on Nanking

Tokyo, Aug. 20 (INS)—China's capital blazed today when Japanese bombers staged their fourth and most destructive raid on Nanking and another squadron spread renewed havoc in the river metropolis of Hankow.

Extension of Japanese aerial and military activity coincided with a flat announcement by Premier Prince Fuminaro Konoye that Japan is abandoning her policy of "nonaggression."

Bidding foreign powers to keep their hands off, the premier made it clear that Nippon was marching into a war of long duration and decisive outcome for all time.

Quakes Hit Manila as U. S. Shanghai Refugees Land

Manila, P. I., Aug. 20 (AP)—Two sharp earthquakes threw Manila into darkness tonight in a terrifying welcome to American refugees arriving from Shanghai.

Manila residents fled from their homes and hotels. Many fires started by the shocks, the worst in 40 years, added to the panic.

Several large buildings and a number of churches were damaged. Many injuries but no deaths were reported during the confusion following the first shock, about 8 p. m. The second tremor added new terror 20 minutes later. The shocks were felt at least 200 miles away.

Most terrified by the rumbling and shaking of the earth were the 376 refugees arriving aboard teh President Jefferson from Shanghai. The refugees had scarcely landed when the quake struck.

A score were still in the customs house when the quake struck. The building swayed and creaked and the lights blinked out. Terror reigned.

The refugees had landed amid considerable confusion, some carrying babies and others nondescript baggage they had hurriedly thrown together before fleeing.

The composure of all was largely restored when the electric lights were turned on again.

Harvard Seismograph Records Manila Quake

Directly over the North Pole, shortest earth curvature line between here and the Philippines, came the waves recording the violent Manila earthquake today on the Harvard University observatory seismograph, Dr. L. Don Leet, director of the station, announced.

Dr. Leet described the quake as one of the largest of the year.

Landing in Manila in the midst of an earthquake, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., one of the hundreds of American refugees from Shanghai, in an exclusive article for International News Service, today declares scenes in the Chinese city made the German bombardment of Paris in 1918 look like a 'child's tea party."

Wife of the former governor-general of the Philippines, she tells how she experienced "real terror" as they boarded the President Jefferson while bombs fell. Mrs. Roosevelt and her son, Quentin, landed with two Chinese vases, their sole possessions. Her eyewitness story follows:

By MRS. THEODORE ROOSEVELT, JR.

Written eclusively for International News Service.

Manilla, Aug. 20—My son, Quentin, and I were saying only tonight how wonderful to be clean and quiet in a peaceful city like Manila after the horror of Shanghai, when suddenly the floor started to shake.

MRS. ROOSEVELT

Quentin said:

"What a terrific wind!"

I said:

"his is 'an earthquake! Get under the door frame!" T

At first we couldn't make it due to the motion of the building. We had just succeeded when a wardrobe with three glass panes crashed.

I said to Quentin:

It was funny because I had just received a cabe from my husband, who is annoyed at my getting in the war.

He called:

"From now on you stay home!"

To me the most amazing thing about Shanghai was the dramatic suddenness with which the trouble broke.

Thursday night we went to a restaurant and listened to the music of a Hungarian Gypsy orchestra.

SEES WAR START

There was a mob of a thousand Chinese chasing five Japanese. Four escaped. One tripped and fell. They got him. They kicked and beat him to a pulp.

Then we saw a signal light on the Idzuma blinking.

I said:

"Watch now, it's going to begin."

As guns blazed, the manager of our hotel asked us to leave. Eight minutes later bombs fell in the street where we were stopping.

We rushed to a building on Canton road, going to the sixth floor. We watched the bombin. Oil drums caught fire and a spectacular fire began.

We returned to our house in the French concession. We passed the Great World Circle, where two bombs had fallen 20 minutes earlier.

HUNDREDS MANGLED

The scene was dreadful. Hundreds lay around horribly mangled. There were bodies and stray legs and arms.

Sunday was quiet, except that one shell exploded close to the house where we were stopping.

Monday we returned to the bund and saw the battle across the river at Pootung.

I saw Paris durin gthe 1918 bombardment, but that was a child's tea party compared with the sights of Shanghai during those three days.

I am convinced the bombing of the foreign settlements by Chinese was entirely accidental.

WOMEN AVERT PANIC

Only the splendid courage of American women prevented a panic.

Loading us was a feat of real seamanship.

It is wonderful to be back again on American soil where we have so many friends.

Coming here we were forced to sleep in the Chinese steerage quarters and it was uncomfortable, although everyone did everything possible to help us.

I am going back to the United States and stay there.

Mayor Knox Not Hurt in Collision

Mayor Leslie Knox of Somerville revealed today he escaped injury last night in a collision of two automobiles at Blue Hill avenue and American Legion highway, Mattapan, as he was returning from the American Legion convention at New Bedford.

His chauffeur was Fred McGovern. The other car, which was driven by Abraham Hurwitz of Hosmer street, Mattapan, according to police, also carried Stella Hurwitz, who claimed shoulder injuries.

CONGRESS SET TO ADJOURN TONIGHT

Washington, Aug. 20 (AP)—Congressional chieftains opened a sudden drive today to adjourn Congress by late tonight, if possible.

Democratic leader Barkley conceded for the first time as the Senate convened at noon that there was "a chance" to finish up the long session by tonight, instead of waiting until tomorrow.

He said it all depended upon the progress made by conferees on the Wagner Housing bill, and on the possibility of getting a quick conference agreement on the third deficiency appropriation bill, the last major measure of the session.

Previously, Barkley had scoffed at the likelihood of an adjournment tonight, contending there was no reason for hurrying just to save one day.

DISPUTE OVER HOUSING

But as he and other leaders looked over the skimpy program for action, and heard the cries of their followers for an adjournment tonight, if possible, they decided to try for that goal.

Only a last minute dispute between House and Senate over the form of housing legislation broke the abnormal calm of the closing hours.

A momentary flurry was created last night by the refusal of southern Democratic representatives to take part in a party caucus called by supporters of the administration wage and hour bill.

The supporters wanted the caucus to force the House rules committee to let the bill be debated. Southerners, who contend the measure would hamper industrial growth in their states, would not answer roll call—and a quorum could not be obtained.

WILL GO OVER

Consequently, it became certain that the wage and hour program, already passed by the Senate, would go over until next session.

There was a possibility, however, one of its chief provisions—abolition of labor by children under 16—might be enacted this year. The Senate unexpectedly approved that portion yesterday as a separate bill.

The Senate Appropriations committee sent to the floor today a $138,000,000 deficiency appropriation bill, the last major measure awaiting Senate action before adjournment.

It wrote in new appropriations totaling $53,000,000, but trimmed $14,700,000 off items approved by the House.

The bill therefore carried a net increase of $38,300,000 over the House figures. The largest addition was $50,000,000 to carry out the provisions of a new sugar bill.

Youth Recovering From Poison Dose

Nashua, N. H., Aug. 20—Arthur F. Prior, 22, of Union street, was recovering at a local hospital today from the effects of a poison taken yesterday when he attempted suicide, according to police.

NOW 'MRS. SENATOR'

International News Photograph Service.

Miss Dixie Graves, who takes over the Senate seat vacated by Hugo L. Black after his appointment to the Supreme Court. She was named by her husband, Governor Bibb Graves, of Alabama.

MRS. GRAVES SWORN AS ALABAMA SENATOR

Washington, Aug. 20—Mrs. Dixie Bibb Graves, wife of Alabama's governor, became the fourth woman senator in history today when Vice-President Garner administered the oath of office to her before a tremendous throng in the Senate chamber.

Hundreds of sightseers crowded the galleries. Other hundreds were unable to gain admission to the chamber.

Heflin in Scramble For Senate Seat

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 20 (AP)—A wide-open scramble for the Senate seat resigned by Hugo Black was expected today with the fiery J. Thomas Heflin, former Senator and blunt-speaking foe of Wall street, Tammy Hall and the Roman Catholic hierarchy, an avowed candidate, and the prospect there would be eight others.

Governor Bibb Graves named his wife, Dixie, to succeed Black, who becomes a Supreme Court justice, but described the selection as "temporary."

The state Democratic committee will call a primary some time after February, to choose a nominee, he said, and he will appoint the party choice to serve Black's unexpired term, ending January, 1939.

The actual election, set for Graves for April 26, will be only a formality as a Democratic nomination in Alabama usually is equivalent to election.

AGED PAIR DIES IN WORCESTER SUICIDE PACT

Worcester, Aug. 20—Together through a long life, an elderly couple here last night chose death in a suicide pact rather than separation because of illness, police said today.

They were Herbert H. Churchill, 75, well-to-do retired butcher, and his wife, Carrie E. Churchill, 64.

Neighbors found them side-by-side in the bedroom of their Russell street dwelling. A gas jet in the room had been turned on full the night before.

According to police, Mrs. Churchill was suffering from an incurable ailment and yesterday had been told by her physician that it would be necessary for her to enter a hospital.

Reconstructing what followed, police said the couple decided that they could not live apart. They went to their bank and drew out several thousand dollars—all their savings.

Then, returning home, they calmly sat down, wrote a number of farewell notes and divided the money, which they left in envelopes for persons whose names were not disclosed.

Until about midnight, according to Mrs. Charles L. White, who occupied a room of the Churchill apartment, the couple sat around recalling old times and tenderly recounting incidents long since past.

Then they went to their room, quietly stuffed every crack and opening with rags so as to prevent gas from escaping, and went to bed. The gas jet was left open. Sleeping, they died.

"BITTER WITH SWEET"

The calm resignation to death accepted by Mr. and Mrs. Churchill was disclosed in a line of one of the notes. It read:

"We have gone through life together, taking the bitter with the sweet."

Then the letter stated that the man and his wife preferred death to life apart.

Police said the Churchills planned the suicide carefully, even assuring discovery of their bodies. Merle Reed of Spencer, a son-in-law, informed the officers that his wife's parents had insisted he visit them early today.

The bodies were discovered by Mrs. White, who detected the odor of gas this morning and summoned police. Medical Examiner Frederick H. Baker declared the tragedy a double suicide.

For many years Churchill conducted a market here and was well known. The couple went to St. Petersburg, Fla., several years ago upon his retirement, returning here last April to live.

Suspected Slayer of Girl in Daze

Hendersonville, N. C., Aug. 20 (AP)—A special guard remained today at the hospital bedside of 28-year-old T. D. Hazelwood, former Butler University athlete, charged with ravishing and slaying his young step-daughter, Gloria Hauser.

The body of the 12-year-old girl, Coroner Fruce Cox said, was found about 50 feet from the bottom of a 120-foot ravine near here, Tuesday. Hazelwood, found near the scene in an apparently dazed condition, has been under treatment for mental shock.

The coroner said Hubert Barnett, an oil company salesman, and Everett Williams, a truck driver, found Hazelwood crawling from the edge of the ravine on his hands and knees, crying to them: "For God's sake, save my child!"

Mail Carrier's Death Is Probed

An investigation into the sudden death of L. W. Hunt, rural mail carrier of South Londonderry, Vt., just before a Boston postal inspector arrived in that town to question him in a holdup, was started today by Chief Postal Inspector John J. Breslin.

Hunt told authorities two armed men robbed him of $5 in postal funds. A few minutes before Inspector Joseph M. O'Toole arrived in South Londonderry, Hunt died at his home.

'Hoax Baby' Ruling Delayed by Court

Chicago, Aug. 20 (INS)—Little Donald Horst remained with his foster parents today after the juvenile court deferred action on his final adoption until September 17.

The two and one-half-year-old boy, subject of a sensational "hoax" kidnaping by his real mother and a subsequent custody battle, was awarded temporarily to the Horsts pending court investigation.

Hunt Continued For Bailey Girl

Northfield, Aug. 20—Police today continued to search for the automobile of a Walpole man into which it is believed Miss Elizabeth Bailey, 14, of Westwood, stepped when she disappeared from the Christian Endeavor Union Conference here Tuesday morning.

3 Bandits Who Beat Danvers Woman Held in $60,000

Three suave, blonde bandits today were held under bail of $20,000 each by Judge Charles Murphy, in Salem District Court, after they pleaded guilty to robbing an elderly Danvers woman of $1 as she returned from church last night.

Their plea came a few minutes after they had heard Town Counsel James H. Sullivan, his voice trembling with emotion, describe how their victim had been cruelly beaten during the robbery despite her feeble pleas for mercy.

The woman was 64-year-old Mrs. Mary H. Sullivan, of Maple street, Danvers, mother of the town counsel.

According to police, the three youths jumped from a car on Lawrence street, Danvers, near a church which Mrs. Sullivan had just left, took the money, then pummelled her so severely she was taken to Hunt Memorial Hospital.

The accused youths are Peter Grocki, 24; Joseph Emmett, 19, and Walter H. Sweeney, 21, all of Salem. They were held for the grand jury.

After his plea had been entered Sweeney asked the court for permission to say a few words. Given consent, he began:

"Your honor, I took no part in the beating. I—"

Judge Murphy cut him short, declaring:

LAY ACCIDENTS TO EQUIPMENT

Declaring faulty equipment contributes to a third of all automobile accidents, Wilfred E. Brown, assistant director of traffic engineering of the National Conservation Bureau, New York, at Harvard yesterday urged uniform standards for inspecting vehicles.

Addressing approximately 50 policemen enrolled in the traffic school of the Harvard Bureau of Traffic Research, Brown said that drivers who fail to keep their cars in condition are responsible for a large percentage of the nation's death toll on the highways.

Four methods were demonstrated in a series of speed tests on North Harvard street, conducted by Wilbur S. Smith of the South Carolina State Highway Department.

Cars were clocked for speed by using a photo-electric coil detector, the electric roadway speedometer, mirror boxes and by measured distance with stop watches.

'Prowler' Returns Ketti's Gems, Furs

Hollywood, Aug 20 (AP)—Twenty-five thousand dollars' worth of jewels and furs reported stolen from actress Ketti Gallian last Sunday were returned mysteriously today in a suitcase dumped on the porch of her canyon home.

She was entertaining friends when her butler notified her of a suspicious noise. Investigating, they found the suitcase but called police to open it.

Out tumbled ermine, sable and fox furs and jewelry. Everything taken was there, except three bottles of perfume.

"The whole thing is fantastic," exclaimed Miss Gallian.

New Kind of Shark Brought to Pier

A strange, vicious deep-sea shark, taken off the Georges Bank in 50 fathoms of water, was being displayed at Fish Pier today by seamen of the trawler Illinois.

Brought in yesterday, the large shark was observed by experts of the government fisheries, who stated it is an absolutely new species to them. No record of such a fish as this particular type of shark being caught can be found, they said.

Five feet long, weighing 23 pounds, the shark is solid brown in color, instead of bluish gray as other known sharks hereabouts.

5TH DAY QUEST FOR BABY ON IN VERMONT

Arlington, Vt., Aug. 20—Weary posses began a fine-tooth search of wooded areas near this town today, the fifth day of hunting for 20-months-old Alice Baker of Hudson Falls, N. Y., missing since Monday.

Four days of unrelenting search brought no trace of the child, but Sheriff W. Clyde Peck insisted "she must be here somewhere."

"After checking all possibilities, we are positive the child can't have been taken out of this locality," he said.

Peck ordered the hunt near the home where Mr. and Mrs. Kimball Baker and their three small children were spending the summer when Alice disappeared.

He recalled that two-year-old Winona Nelson of Upton, Mass., was found under a brush pile in similar terrain last April after four nights spent in the open. She survived the ordeal.

"We are going right on with this hunt for the Baker child until every inch of land around here has been covered," Peck said.

$240,825 to Four

An estate estimated at $240,825 left by the late Harold C. Hart of Wellesley, president of the New England Nash Company, will be divided among four women members of his family. The will was allowed in probate court, Dedham by Judge Joseph McCoole.

SLEEP-TALK MYSTERY DEATH CLUE

Worcester, Aug. 20—A new "hot clue" in the 10-year-old mystery murder of pretty Maybelle Matheson, 18-year-old West Roxbury knitting mill worker, was revealed here today when two Boston police officers arrived for an investigation which may lead to a solution of the case.

According to a reliable source, the latest episode in the "Crime of Many Clues" was said to have been disclosed by a mysterious, elderly Worcester woman, whose identity police refused to reveal.

Inspector Harry Pierce, crack Boston crime investigator, and Police Stenographer William Shanahan were summoned to the scene by Detective Superintendent William P. Finneran to take a statement from the woman, it was said.

Like other fantastic leads followed by investigators in the murder hunt, which has taken Boston police to snow-swept Canadian wilds and covered all of New England, this new angle is perhaps the most bizarre yet encountered.

The woman's story, according to persons close to the inquisition, is that she derived the new link from the subconscious mutterings of a Worcester man, whose mumblings were recounte to her.

She has named the sleep talker, it was declared, and Inspector Pierce, aided by Worcester detectives, will question the man.

Police operated with the greatest secrecy, even refusing to reveal the identity of men assigned to the case. This fact, observers held, may mean that at last a clue of real significance has been unearthed.

The murder of Maybelle Matheson in West Roxbury on a January night in 1927 was one of the most sensational crime stories ever to arouse this section of the country.

Maybelle, who came to the mill town from the strangely-named hamlet of Whycocomagh, Nova Scotia, was an attractive girl who had a peculiar fascination for men.

She was besieged by suitors, creating a rabid jealousy among wives and sweethearts of the men she attracted.

On the night of January 21, 1927, she phoned a girl friend and made an appointment for later in the evening. It was the last time any person was known to have spoken to the girl.

Next morning her battered body was found lying on an ice-covered pond in Baker street, West Roxbury.

Police immediately were confronted by a variety of clues. There was a mysterious "foreigner" who frequently took Maybelle riding in an expensive automobile. There were jealous women. There were disappointed suitors. There was a left-handed man sought as the slayer.

Now there is the subconscious sleep talk. Some psychologists say that statements made while sleeping are invariably true, that facts long suppressed by the conscious mind manage to gain expression in the uncontrolled outpourings of the subconscious.

It is this that leads persons connected with the mystery to hope that the latest angle in Worcester may at last bring an unravelling of the tangled threads that have puzzled police for a decade.

WILKINS FLIES ON ARCTIC HUNT

Toronto, Aug. 20 (INS) — Sir Hubert Wilkins, Arctic explorer, pointed his giant flying boat, Guba, further towards polar regions today in quest of the missing Russian aviator, Sigismund Levanensky, and his five companions.

Sir Hubert and his five-man crew took off from Port Arthur, Ont., at 9 a. m. on a 1200-mile non-stop flight to Fort Smith, according to dispatches received here.

After a short stopover at Fort Smith, the searching aviators will depart for Aklavik, Northwest Territory, where they will establish a base for the hunt for the Russians, who have been missing nearly a week.

HI-LI PLAYERS GO AFTER NEW RECORDS

Sing "Hey-nonny-nonny" and a loud "Hi-Li"!

You might as well sing "Hi-Li" because everybody else is playing this new sport which has spread over the entire country.

The Boston Evening American in conjunction with a group of Greater Boston theaters is sponsoring a series of elimination Hi-Li contests, for which prizes of all descriptions are offered to winners. In addition, each entrant will get a free candy bar at contest theaters.

Hi-Li is a game of skill. Anyone who walks along a Boston street has seen how it is played.

The object is to hit a small rubber ball with a wooden paddle to which it is attached by a strong elastic cord. When the ball rebounds on the end of the cord, you hit it again. (Maybe you just try. It's not as easy as it looks.) Then you keep on hitting it.

Records are being set every day as experts in the sport bat the ball hundreds of times without a single miss. Join the contest now.

9:30 a. m.—Strand Theater, Chelsea.

10:30 a. m.—Revere Theater, Revere.

11:30 a. m.—Lincoln Theater, Quincy Point.

11:30 a. m.—Dorchester Theater, Dorchester; Gem Theater, East Boston.

SCORE HI-LI WINS

MARY DICKEY ELAINE LARSON

The young Hi-Li experts, Mary Dickey, 12, and Elaine Larson, 11, both of Dorchester, were among the winners in an elimination contest in the Hamilton theater, Dorchester. Now they're looking ahead to meeting new rivals, and they're hoping eventually to earn their share of the many valuable prizes offered by Greater Boston theater managements and the Boston Evening American.

Judge Urges Whip For Douglas Man

East Greenwich, R. I., Aug. 20 (AP)—Horse-whipping was suggested as the proper punishment for Albert A. Laflame, 33, of Douglas, Mass., after he was adjudged probably guilty of possessing improper literature.

FLAHERTY, RED HERO, SENT TO DEER ISLAND

Edward C. Flaherty may or may not have been a hero, with his two brothers, with Spain's Loyalist army—but today he was ignominiously sent to Deer Island on a three months sentence.

And before he was handed the sentence, the 26-year-old American who enlisted in Spain and who was hailed last night as a "lion" on the Symphony Hall stage, heard himself called anything but that in municipal court.

Flaherty, arrested after last night's meeting, was arraigned before Judge Joseph E. Donovan on a default warrant in connection with an automobile misappropriation in 1933.

At that time, four years ago, Flaherty had been given a sentence of three months, suspended on his promise to make $100 restitution for damage to the car he allegedly took.

OFFER REJECTED

Today Judge Donovan lifted the suspension and invoked the sentence, rejecting an offer by Flaherty's counsel to pay the $100 now.

"He has been wholly and completely uncooperative," said the court of Flaherty. "Every probation officer that has handled this case has been unableto do anything with him.

"He acts as if he were boss of everything. He has done nothing about the matter except flaunt the whole hing in the face of everybody. He got away with it as long as he could."

PRINTS ARE TAKEN

Most of the 1600 persons at the gathering had gone home when Special Officer William J. Goldston of the radical squad served the warrant and took him into custody. He was taken to headquarters, fingerprinted and photographed.

According to police, Flaherty pleaded guilty in 1933 to using an automobile without authority. He was given a three month suspended sentence on condition he make restitution for damage to the car.

At that time Flaherty was employed in a Stuart street parking station and, with another youth as driver, took the automobile of a Lexington woman from the space, it was charged. In Somerville the car was in collision with a truck.

Flaherty and his brothers had been staying at a Boston hotel since their arrival for the mass meeting of radical sympathizers.

At the meeting those present hissed and booed Governor Hurley's name on several occasions in connection with speches on the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

Manuel Blanc, chairman of the meeting, in referring to the famous case, declared "they may burn the Massachusetts Guide, but neither Fuller, Ely, Lowell nor Hurley can wash the stains out of Massachusetts history."

MRS. HAHN ASKS DETAIL CHARGE

Cincinnati, Aug. 20 (AP)—While experts made a post-mortem examination of the body of Mrs. Ollie Luella Koehler, 79, attorneys for Mrs. Anna Hahn, 31-year-old German-born blonde, went to court today to argue a motion for a bill of particulars on indictments charging her with slaying two elderly men.

The defense also sought court appointment of an expert to analyze substances taken from the body of George Gsellman, 67, and asked evidence which, Attorney Joseph Hoodin said, police took from the homes of Gsellman and Mrs. Hahn.

The blonde is charged with poisoning Gsellman and Jacob Wagner, 78, in what has been termed one of the "biggest mass murders in this country."

The examination of Mrs. Koehler's body was ordered after her sister, Mrs. Mary Arnold, 65, told authorities Mrs. Koehler became ill just after eating ice cream given her by Mrs. Hahn.

CHECK PRINTS IN NEW HOLDUP

Police today were checking fingerprints, one belonging to a woman, found on the abandoned stolen car used in the Watertown holdup and robbery of $700 of Louis Zazzera, store proprietor.

According to police, the fingerprints definitely link the holdup men with the gang sought four months by New England authorities.

The car was stolen July 7 in Brookline. It had been driven 4600 miles.

Two men forced Zazzera to the side of the road on Fifth street, Watertown and forced him to hand over an envelope containing $700 he had just drawn from the bank. They missed another envelope containing $1000.

Entertain at Luncheon Before Bridge at Wianno Club

By BETTY ALDEN

IN SPITE of the continuous warm weather . . . day after day . . . it is a little hard to realize that summer has come and is already practically over . . .

But the calendar can't be wrong . . . and it says there are only sixteen more days 'til Labor Day . . . so we had better print a number of vacation notes that we have gathered here and there, before the summer colonists along the North and South shores begin to pack up their belongings and head for home . . .

NANCY NEWELL

Down on the Cape, Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. David B. Newell of Wianno and Mrs. Charles Russell of Falmouth had a gay little party at the Wianno Club . . . when they were hostesses to a number of their summer neighbors at luncheon before the weekly duplicate bridge session at the club . . .

Mrs. Newell, mother of one of the attractive debs of this season, Nancy Newell, had lots in common to chat about with one of her guests, Mrs. John Moir of Wianno, who is also launching a debutante on the social seas this autumn . . .

Others joining in the fun were Mrs. Augustus W. Eddy, a member of the New York colony at Osterville . . . Mrs. E. K. Davis, also of New York . . . Countess Pompe Perie, Mrs. Charles A. Falvey of Hyannisport, Mrs. Harry Wheeler and Mrs. Frederick S. Whitwell . . .

* * *

Nancy Hallowell Heckscher (Mrs. John) has returned to her home in Philadelphia after visiting her mother, Mrs. J. Mott Hallowell at Wianno . . . Her place at her mother's festive board is occupied now by the junior James Mott Hallowells (Mary McKey) who have been alternating all summer between Wianno's cool salty breezes and the balmy country air at their farm in Pepperell . . .

New Pastime for North Shore Males

ONE OF THE POPULAR pastimes of the masculine element on the North Shore seems to be the raising of hirsute facial adornments . . . After a couple of months vacation out west, Eddie Wigglesworth, Jr., turned up at a party the other evening with a resplendent Van Dyke beard which shades all the way from a light blond in the center to auburn on the edges . . . The beard gives him so much dignity that a small North Shore group is now agitating to have Eddie nominated for the Supreme Court! . . . John Kilgour Heyl, who comes from Cincinnati every summer to occupy his estate at Eastern Point, has also been indulging in hirsute decorations . . . He is the nephew of the late Larz Anderson . . . and is growing a long, curled moustache which is ultimately to be an exact replica of the one worn by his famous uncle . . .

* * *

Already Boston folks are homeward bound from summer journeys . . . and it will not be long before the Charles S. Jenney family is reunited again at Cohasset where they will spend the month of September . . . Mr. Jenney is looking forward to meeting Mrs. Jenney and Elizabeth abroad and escorting them home from their travels, while the son of the household has been sampling rugged life on a ranch and will be delighted to join his family once again . . .

* * *

It didn't take Hope Distler's North Shore friends long to rally round and give a party to welcome her back to the shore after her return the other day from California, where she has been sojourning at Lake Tahoe . . . for Hope was no sooner back, ensconced for the rest of the season at her grandmother's in Annisquam, than Virginia Ward, Betsy McKean, Jane Ragle and several others gathered together a crowd of young people and gave a celebration for Hope at the Casino . . . Hope's grandmother is Mrs. Henry A. Wise Wood, that artistic person who makes life very gay and colorful with her lectures on some of the picturesque gardens of the world . . . She illustrates her lectures with enchanting colored photographs which she snaps herself . . .

* * *

Another homeward-bound couple is Mr. and Mrs. Roger Griswold, who are soon to set foot on these shores again and collect their children from summer camp in Brewster . . . where they have been while Mr. and Mrs. Griswold enjoyed a brief vacation abroad . . .

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Prince are sailing in the opposite direction from the majority . . . in taking their European jaunt so late . . . they have just sailed aboard the Bremen for a short stay abroad . . .

Rose Weld Picks September 18 for Bridal

DEBUTANTE PARTIES and weddings will sort of crowd everything else off the social calendar for September 18 . . . especially since Rose Weld has chosen that date to become the bride of Ian Baldwin . . . The wedding will take place at Wareham with a reception at the Welds' summer home there . . . and since the bride is a granddaughter of the former Mrs. Philip Saltonstall, now Mrs. Joel Goldthwaite, she could almost fill the church just by inviting her own relatives, and the absence of most of these from the North Shore for the day, will leave a large gap in the social colony there . . .

Rose is fortunate in having four sisters who will form her bridal party . . . Mrs. S. Huntington Wolcott, Jr., of Milton (Mary Weld) will be matron of honor and the Misses Adelaide, Katharine and Frances Weld will precede her down the aisle in their bridesmaids' frocks . . . Gracious Phrases

WHAT an advantage Beth has over Jane! She's not a bit brighter—but by being ready with an apt, gracious phrase at the right moment she appears so much more charming.

How quickly she puts this stranger—a fellow-guest at the hotel—at his ease. "Just fills the bill," she says gaily. "Nothing like spring water after a walk. It's so cold and sparkling." And Jane? She muttered, "Thanks!"

But how can you click every time? There aren't so many different occasions that a good stock of phrases can't stretch to fit them all.

Many invitations you can accept with "Certainly I'll come" —or refuse pleasantly with "If I only could!" Congratulations you can express with "It does you credit!"

At the end of a business interview say, "I've enjoyed our talk very much." At the close of a telephone call from a friend, "So glad you called."

Those awful moments after an introduction—when both you and the other person are struck dumb? Show your poise by saying, "I've met so many interesting hobby enthusiasts lately. Are you one?" Or just ask, "Are you a stranger here, too?"

And hold attention with vivid phrases, "The little rascal was blase as a taxi driver." You were "frozen by his glacial air"—or "wooed with honeyed words."

At no time need you be stuck for something to say. With the help of our 40-page booklet, 1500 USEFUL PHRASES, you can quickly tune up your speech. Meet every occasion with the ease and the command of words that win admiration.

Send 15c for our booklet, 1500 USEFUL PHRASES, to Boston Evening American, Home Institute, 109 West 19th Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Middle-Aged Wife Sure She's Bathing Beauty, Husband Writes

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Our most fortunate gift is that few of us see ourselves as others see us.

Mirrors do flatter, and for that we should thank heaven.

But no matter how much or often I think, I can find no better explanation than the one that science accepts. It is simple this: THE ABILITY OF A HOMELY WOMAN TO THINK HERSELF A BEAUTY IS ONE OF THE MANY COMPENSATORY BLUFFS THAT NATURE HAS A WAY OF HANDING OUT AS TEETH AND HAIR FALL.

The man, whose letter I am going to let you read, ought not to be too much upset. His wife is actually blessed with a happiness that would be impossible for her if she could see herself revealed in all her ugliness.

Instead of ridiculing here, he should be patient. For, in a few years at the most, she will calmly accept whitened hair and wrinkled cheeks as things that cannot be avoided.

So, trusting that all readers who have observed these foolish middle-aged women will drop me a line and let me know their opinions, I give you Mr. B. R. S.'s letter:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Since my wife has been going to a beauty parlor regularly, she cherishes the delusion that she is absolutely irresistible to men.

My friends and hers, who knew her as a sane and sensible woman, are puzzled at this change which has come over her.

She is decidedly middle-aged and not attractive, outside of the good, homely domestic virtues which made her an excellent wife and mother and a good housekeeper.

By no stretch of the imagination could she be considered a bathing beauty, however much like one she thinks she looks.

This new kink she's got in her head about being an all-conquering siren is worrying me considerable. Are many women like that?

MR. B. R. S.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I manage a garage and naturally see a lot of life. Late parties, drinking, ladies and gentlemen carrying thermos bottles full of cocktails, and taking swigs while they're waiting for oil and gas.

My wife's a good woman, but it got me to thinking maybe something like that was going on at home.

So I shut up the garage a half hour earlier than closing time one night and came in unexpectedly.

She had put the children to sleep and was reading a book. I felt good and ashamed of myself, but the trouble is, the boss is thinking of firing me for quitting a half hour too soon.

Had I better tell him why I was off duty?

GARAGE MAN.

DEAR FRIEND:

If the boss has a sense of humor, better tell him that a sudden pang of jealousy started you locking up a half hour too soon in the evening, with the idea of surprising your wife.

If he has a sense of justice, he'll realize you became a victim of these dismal suspicions in working 'round his place.

If you're not fired, I think it's up to you to do something decent for your wife.

"Your Figure Madame!"

AFTER THIRTY BEAUTY UP TO YOU

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Beauty after thirty is an art which takes work, but there is no excuse for your figure losing its lovely, youthful lines.

Statistics prove that normal weight at thirty is your healthiest weight from then on, and the figures of beautiful women in their thirties disprove the necessity for letting the figure age.

The only requirement is that you give as consistent attention to your figure as you do to your hair and skin. The effort is not worth making unless it is consistent.

The following group of exercises will help you to revise, improve or keep your measurements as they are.

For the abdomen, hips and waistline:

POSITION: Lying flat on your back on the floor, hands clasped back of the head, with the elbows bent.

MOVEMENT: Raising the right leg off the floor and at the same time raising the head and shoulders, bend the right knee and touch to left elbow. Now touch the left knee to the right elbow holding the right leg on the floor. Repeat five times, relax and repeat five times.

* * *

The second part of the exercise is to touch both knees to the elbows simultaneously, lowering the legs to the floor after touching.

After thirty there seems to be an increased tendency for the upper arms, especially the backs of the arms, to become soft and flabby. Here is an exercise which tones the muscles in this area and keeps the arms young-looking.

MOVEMENT: Bring the arms forcibly toward the shoulders, bending the elbows and pushing the shoulders well back. Now strike out forward, with both fists together, as if you were delivering blows. Put plenty of punch into the exercise, keeping it up for ten counts, then relaxing and repeating for the same number of times.

Be sure to keep the arms at shoulder level and put force behind the blows, bringing the arms back vigorously to exercise the back and shoulder muscles.

* * *

To maintain a firm, high bust contour, take exercises which strengthen the pectoral muscles. The foregoing arm exercise benefits these muscles to some extent, but one of the best exercises is to grasp light weights in either hand and swing the arms in large, backward circles. Hold the elbows straight as you swing.

You must have a supple waistline and slim hips if you are to feel and look young, so do not fail to include stretching exercises for the waist, and kicking for the hips.

Exercises in the leaflet "General Exercises—To Keep You Trim and Fit as a Fiddle" offer an excellent introductory exercise program. Send for this leaflet, enclosing a stamped return envelope, and waste no time in beginning daily exercise.

Try This Delectable Buffet Supper

FROM MARTHA LEE'S FRIDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WMEX

OF ALL the delightful ways in which to entertain, probably none is more enjoyable to the guests (and easier for the hostess) than a buffet supper.

And in the summer, you can add to the charm of this easy informal type of party by having small tables on the porch—or even out in the yard, if you wish.

Have the little tables covered with gay cloths—set with the necessary silverware, water glass and napkin at each place —and a low bowl of garden or wild flowers in the center.

Let the guests help themselves to the attractive foods arranged on your dining room table—and then take their plates to the small tables outside.

A menu that you can easily prepare in the cool of the day and that will be a refreshing accompaniment to a warm evening is the following:

Salmon Mousse
Fresh Tomato and Cucumber Mayonnaise
Stuffed Celery Radish Roses
Crisp Potato Chips
Hot Buttered Garden Peas
Tray of Assorted Rolls Jelly
Pineapple Sherbert
Chocolate Fluffy Sponge Cake
Coffee Iced Tea

The Salmon Mousse is a handsome dish—so delicate in its lovely pink coloring. Garnished with cool-looking rings of green pepper and thin, crisp slices of cucumber, it is just the sort of dish to tempt the appetite on a warm night.

The Tomato and Cucumber Mayonnaise served with it, is easily made. It is something you will want to prepare often, because it is so delicious with vegetables salads as well as with all kinds of sea food salads.

A tray of interesting rolls is an important item on this menu. Hard rolls, Danish pastries, clover leaf rolls, orange rolls, poppyseed rolls—you can buy them in endless variety from your neighborhood baker.

And to serve with the fruity Pineapple Sherbet you will want just the right cake—one not too rich, but temptingly different, light and tender.

SALMON MOUSSE

2 tablespoons gelatin.
$\frac{1}{2}$ cup cold water.
$\frac{1}{2}$ cup lemon juice.
$\frac{3}{4}$ teaspoon salt.
$\frac{1}{8}$ teaspoon paprika.
1 lb. can salmon (2 cups).
1 pt. whipping cream (2 cups).

Soak gelatin in cold water, and dissolve over hot water. Add lemon juice and seasoning. Pour over salmon, which has been carefully boned and flaked. Add stiffly whipped cream. Pour into loaf pan, 7 by 7 by 3½ inches deep. Chill thoroughly. When stiff, unmold on serving platter garnished with crisp lettuce or watercress. Serve with Fresh Tomato and Cucumber Mayonnaise. Serves 8 to 10.

FRESH TOMATO AND CUCUMBER MAYONNAISE

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup fresh tomato
$\frac{1}{2}$ cup fresh cucumber
1 cup finely minced onion (if desired)
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup mayonnaise

Peel and cut fresh tomatoes into small dice, and drain well. Peel and cut fresh cucumber into small dice. When ready to serve, mix the tomato pulp, cucumber, onion and salt with mayonnaise.

Deodorants For Man, Girl

THE DAINTINESS issue is one you cannot afford to ignore. It's inadvisable to cut off perspiration entirely, as it is an important bodily function, but it certainly should be curbed to inconspicuousness.

A new note in dainty necessities for you, my lady, is a cologne-deodorant—perfuming, deodorizing and also helping to check this distressing affliction, all at the same time.

It's wonderful to be used in a spray! Dries immediately after application, and leaves you refreshed and fragrant; best of all, it will put an end to the embarrassment of perspiration odors. Very comforting these muggy days, when you are hardly dry from the bath before your skin is moist again.

Gentlemen, the manly sweat that you wipe from your brow will never annoy anyone. But any perspiration left in the skin or on clothes may become obnoxious.

A dedorant powder is on the market for men that is grand to be used after a bath. A light-beige powder that doesn't show, comes either unscented or with a mild ferny odor.

If you would care to know the name of this cologne-deodorant or the special deodorant powder for men, phone Arline Gould at Liberty 4000 or write her, enclosing a self-addressed envelope for a reply.

Bridge

Intelligent Response

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

South, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

West		East
	♠ Q 5 4 3 ♡ 7 6 ◇ K 6 5 3 2 ♣ 5 4
♠ 8 ♡ A K J 4 3 2 ◇ J 9 4 ♣ K J 6	North South	♠ K 10 9 ♡ 10 9 5 ◇ 10 7 ♣ 10 9 8 3 2
	♠ A J 7 6 2 ♡ Q 8 ◇ A Q 8 ♣ A Q 7

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♡	Pass	Pass
Dbl.	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

North felt compelled to pass on the first round even though he had a five-card suit and good support for his partner's trump. Many players would have made the mistake of bidding three diamonds, and many more would have made the mistake of raising to two spades. For a free raise, however, North should have had another half honor-trick or a singleton.

South properly decided not to let West's overcall go uncontested. His good support for the minor suits and general defensive strength made a double the ideal reopening bid. He was perfectly willing for North to pass for penalties in the event that he had fair strength in hearts; otherwise, he wanted North to bid some suit.

At this point North made a highly intelligent bid. A response of two spades would have been horribly weak, and even a bid of three diamonds would not have indicated the full strength of his hand. His actual bid of three spades showed that with only a shade more he would have raised to two spades on the first round. With this reassurance, South went to game.

The play was simple compared to the bidding. West took two heart tricks and shifted to a diamond. South won in his own hand, and laid down the Ace of trumps. A low trump to the Queen knocked out East's King, and South refused the finesse on the club return. Having lost three tricks, he could not afford to lose a club trick.

CHAPTER 23

"It's my heart, miss. I'm subject to heart attacks. I seen a taxi over there on the road. If you could get me to it, miss, I'll drive to the hospital. I feel terrible bad, miss," he whined.

"Certainly I'll put you in it, and I'll pay the driver. He'll take care of you," said generous Toni, full of compassion.

Gripping his skinny old arm she half-supported him through a clearing in the bushes. Luckily, a taxi had drawn up there on the open road.

"Bellevue Hospital, please," muttered the old man. Toni repeated this to the driver, slipping a dollar into his hand. She started to say:

"Now you be careful of your fare—he's ill—"

But the words were cut short as two men [illegible] from the inside of the cab. [illegible] behind one pinioned her arms. Before she could scream for help, a heavy hand was thrust across her mouth.

"Drink this" [illegible]

"What happened?" she asked [illegible]

"Just a gang of stick-up men. Two of our men are trailing 'em, but looks as though they're having a long chase," said the policeman.

"They—got me—into a cab."

"And when me and this gentleman gave chase—he on his horse, and me in a car—the scoundrels flung you from the cab. I'm still of a mind to call an ambulance for her, sir. She may be badly hurt."

THE FRONT PAGE!

"I assure you," said Toni [illegible]ly, "that I only feel a little bruised." She put out a hand to Guy. He helped her to rise. "I'm awfully grateful to you both." Her lips trembled. To her annoyance she felt on the edge of hysterical tears.

"Let's—let's get away."

"Your name, miss?" asked the policeman.

"Oh, no. You see, I'm—a professional. It would hurt me—I mean, I don't want anything in the papers. You understand, officer?"

"But we'll need you to identify the hold-up men. And now give me a description of them."

[illegible]

He was coming toward her now as she sat on the bench.

"I've squared things with the officer for the time being. I could see"—he gave a curious sharp look at her—"that you had no wish to talk. I understand that. But before we leave, you must give him a description of your assailants. Otherwise," he added, with another piercing glance, "he may assume that for reasons of your own you don't wish to assist the law."

"I want to be let alone. I'm afraid."

"Of what?"

"Of stories in the papers. Of what may follow the stories," Toni said desperately and indiscreetly, thinking of her family and friends in San Francisco.

He said gruffly: "Here's the officer. He's going to ask you what these holdup men looked like. If I were you, I'd give him a straight answer. It'll be better in the long run."

"Officer," Toni said truthfully though her voice trembled, "I haven't the least idea what the men in the cab looked like. I could only identify the ragged old creature who fell before my horse and who probably was in league with them."

"He sure was. He rode off with them in the machine." Notebook and pencil were poised. "You wouldn't know the others if you saw 'em again, miss?"

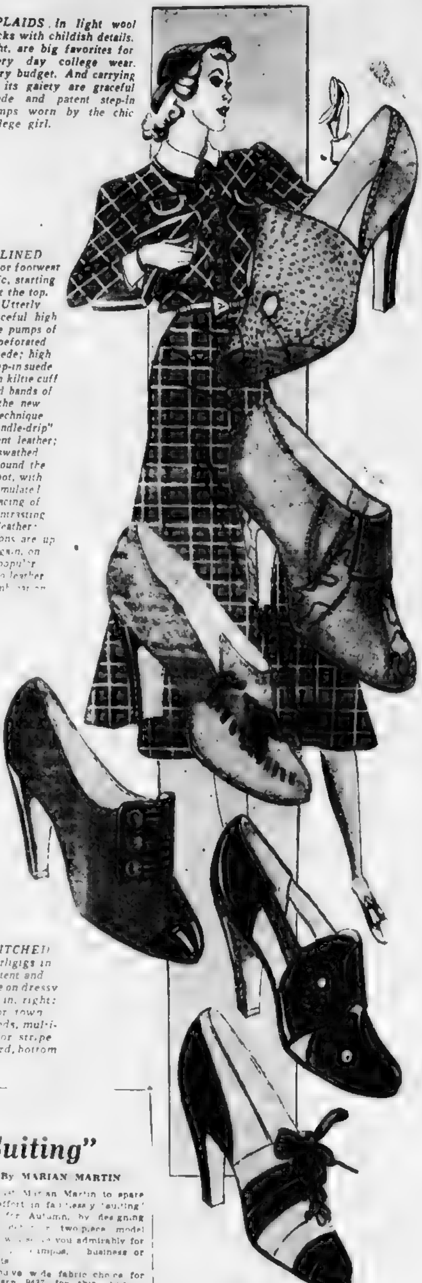
Two Feet Ahead of Autumn



PLAIDS, in light wool frocks with childish details, right, are big favorites for every day college wear. Very budget. And carrying on its gaiety are graceful suede and patent step-in pumps worn by the chic college girl.

LINED up for footwear chic, starting at the top. Utterly graceful high rise pumps of perforated suede; high step-in suede with kiltie cuff and bands of the new technique "candle-drip" patent leather; swathed around the foot, with simulated lacing of contrasting leather; buttons are up again, on popular two-leather com[illegible]

STITCHED whirligigs in patent and suede on dressy step-in, right; for town tweeds, multi-color stripe oxford, bottom

By ANNICE BRINK
Fashion Editor

AUTUMN leaves will have nothing on color when it comes to new footwear fashions!

"Multi-patch" and "multi-stripe" shoes of colored suede that suggest you "match a patch" to your costume are news.

This is the first striking tip on the situation, what with the "multi" shoes themselves standing out in a crowd of new models. Second, one realizes that, as in millinery, the "swing high, swing low" theme song still goes. Shoes take the medium course. Else they're not smart.

Molded lines are still very much to the good. We're waiting for the debut of Schiaparelli's pump that's tied high up around the ankle, with a flirtatious bow. It will be soon!

Two-fabric effects are most important. And you'll see individuality of detailing that will amaze you. For instance, the new technique with patent over suede called "candle drip," that's shown today.

MARRIED COMRADES

By Adele Garrison

CHAPTER 385

LILLIAN DID not reply at once to my question, and I repeated to myself with bitterness the old adage concerning fools and their proclivities for usurping the prerogatives of angels.

But when she finally spoke I realized with delight that her voice held no rancor. Instead, it was appealing, almost humble.

"Do you really think that [illegible]," she asked, "that I'm getting the mother-in-law jitters?"

"If that's what you want to call it," I said, keeping my voice light, "yes, I do."

"Oh! dear!" she said with a childishness wholly [illegible] to her. "I don't want to be so utterly asinine, but Mother Graham's reference to Marion's hope chest has sent me into a nose dive with no parachute handy. Tell me, you don't think my baby has gone and got herself engaged, do you?"

"No, I don't," I said with purposeful pettishness, "neither do you. We both know that Marion would never enter into a formal engagement without telling you about it. She has too fine instincts, has been too gently bred, to do anything of the kind."

"I know, I know," she said, "but," doggedly, "you think she's in love with Ronald, don't you?"

"I'm sure she thinks she is," I said, "just as Ronald is very sure he's in love with her. Whether it's the real thing—who can tell? You know as well as I that for one first love which lasts there are hundreds which vanish into thin air. How can you, how can I, how can any one tell now of what stuff their romance is made? But of one thing I am sure."

"What is that?" Lillian asked uneasily.

"That the surest method of making them consider being formally bound to one another is to manifest any opposition to their companionship. Just now they are floating around in a rosy cloud of illusion, so far removed from practicality that they wouldn't recognize the word if they saw it. In my opinion, while they're probably thinking about marriage, they're [illegible] concerned with dramatizing their emotions, their joys, their moments and their [illegible] for you know they d[illegible]"

"Of course," she said [illegible]tively, when she stopped [illegible]ing. "I really don't know much about the romance at first hand lately. For instance, I haven't seen Ronald since the time when Marion's lock box was [illegible]. You know both he and Marion went back to school [illegible]ly afterward."

AMERICANS BOLT PALESTINE PARLEY

WARBURG IS LEADER

Zurich, Switzerland, Aug. 20 (INS).—American non-Zionist members of the Jewish agency for Palestine suddenly bolted that body's political commission early today, climaxing a bitter debate over the British plan to partition the Holy Land.

The Americans, protesting against a hasty vote on the question, walked out of the meeting room under the leadership of Felix M. Warburg, New York banker and noted American Jewish leader.

The American non-Zionist representatives withdrew following adoption of a resolution empowering the Jewish Agency executive to negotiate with Great Britain on the basis of the partition scheme for establishment of an independent Jewish state in Palestine.

ENDS HEATED DISCUSSION

Warburg and his followers insisted that the British plan to divide Palestine into a small Jewish state, a larger Arab state and a British-mandated zone be flatly rejected.

The resolution was adopted by 25 votes, with [illegible] abstaining.

MAY CRIPPLE MEETING

Withdrawal of the Americans from the political commission was [illegible]

[illegible] withdrawal from the political commission made it probable the adjournment would be deferred.

It was the first serious rift in the Agency's membership since the body was created after Britain received the mandate over Palestine 17 years ago.

The resolution drafted and adopted by the political commission is couched in terms similar to the resolution recently voted at the World Zionist congress here.

It reaffirms the attachment of the Jewish people to the whole of Palestine but enables the executive to enter into conversations with Britain to ascertain the conditions surrounding the British proposal regarding establishment of a sovereign Jewish state.

THIS IS LIFE

By

Robert E. Rogers

They do these things better in France, as the Rev. Laurence Stern once wrote in his "Sentimental Journey."

ROBERT E. ROGERS

A despatch dated some 10 days ago remarks:

"The memory of Perrin La Mothe, inventor of red currant jelly, was perpetuated today with the erection of an obelisk at Velaines En Barrois in the Meuse Valley. La Mothe kept a wine cellar for the Duke Robert in 1362 and discovered that jelly could be made by straining the juice of red currants."

Well, it took the French some little time to get round to setting up the obelisk, but they [illegible] It never would have occurred to [illegible] that red currant jelly needed "discovering" [illegible] apparently it did. It is just [illegible] to the fact that the French [illegible] matters seriously, recognizing them as an important and integral part of civilization.

Step in Long Climb From Savagery

Red currant jelly is one of the steps in the long climb from savagery through barbarism, up from nomadic experimentation towards civilization.

The first man to plant and reap corn, to make fermented wines or beers, to move carts by wheels instead of litters dragging on the ground, these, too, are worthy of monuments if we only knew their names.

The inventor of red currant jelly may not be quite as important historically as the inventor of printing by movable types, but he deserves his monument, too.

Somewhere in the south of France—Avignon, perhaps or Nimes or Arles, or thereabouts—I once saw a monument in a little park, dedicated to a fairly recent notable named Nicot. He was the man who found out about nicotine in tobacco. He lived, I think, in the early part of the nineteenth century, and his fellow townsmen appreciated what he did and put up a monument to him.

And I seem to remember having heard that somewhere in France, too, there is a monument to the time the place, and the man who was the first to manufacture that best of all cheeses, camembert.

Where Is the Monument To the Concord Grape?

In this country we honor mechanical-minded inventors like Whitney and Goodyear and Bell and Edison but we seldom see monuments to the men and women who discover simple things and make use of them. Out in Concord there is the original Concord grape, but where is the monument?

That man whose name I forget, probably did more for American happiness than Nathaniel Hawthorne whose house stands close by. And probably Hawthorne rather despised the humble viticulturalist who reclaimed the vine from its harsh wildness and made it an American classic.

After all, it was no small feat to be the first person in history to make red currant jelly [illegible] This before the days of the chemical aids that come in packages to help out the [illegible] bride.

Comic-Tragedy of Jelly That Just Won't Jell

Do you remember that comic-tragedy in the [illegible] of Louisa May Alcott's "Little W[illegible] where the bride Meg, decides to [illegible] red currant jelly for her John Brooke. [illegible] comes home to supper at the end of [illegible] finds her flushed and hot and tearful in [illegible] kitchen surrounded by pots and pans [illegible] and currant juice—and liquid jelly [illegible] won't jell." Meg apparently had never [illegible] of M. Perrin La Mothe's 1362 recipe.

I remember it used to be an anxious [illegible] at home when mother made currant [illegible] It might turn out well—and it mightn't. [illegible] have a cheese-cloth bag dripping [illegible] All night long it hung suspended [illegible] handle between two kitchen [illegible] dripped. Then you poured it into [illegible] turned into jelly—or it didn't. [illegible] there was nothing to be done [illegible]

On sober consideration I suspect that M. Perrin La Mothe earned his monument. Men [illegible] less for posterity and fared better.

Using the oxygen apparatus, Dr. Caradonna hoped to save him, but pronounced his condition still critical. Behind the doctor in the picture is Supervisor Fred Stefano. Roslindale Woman Dying in Mystery Hit-Run Accident

WIFE SEWS TO AID YOUNG DI STASIO

While Anthony DiStasio paced his cell in East Cambridge jail today, his execution for the Hudson "torch murder" less than a month away, his faithful wife was working on a WPA sewing project "to make things a little easier for him."

Twenty-three-year-old Mrs. Shirley DiStasio with a break in her voice explained how her four days work a week enables her to bring Tony cigarettes, fruit and candy to ease the gruesome wait until September 13 when his life will be snuffed out in the electric chair.

She is still "very much in love with Tony." He was her first love and is yet her only one. Every Saturday she goes to East Cambridge jail to comfort him.

STILL IN LOVE

"That's all the time they allow me to spend with him," she said. "It seems such a short time. I'm afraid we won't have much more time together.

"We are still in love. He was my first boy friend. He carried my books home from school. But now it seems I'm dreaming a horrible nightmare. It seems as if I ought to wake up and find that it isn't real."

[illegible]

"I still remember that terrible night. It was my bridge night," she said. "Tony was in his usual good spirits and apparently had nothing on his mind. He drove me to my bridge club. Later he called to take me home. On our way home we stopped and had doughnuts and coffee.

"FATHER WAS RIGHT"

"He still seemed exactly the same—laughing and talking. I never dreamed that anything had happened.

"You see, Tony was weak. He was always weak and dominated largely by his father. Even when we lived downstairs in his father's house he'd do what his father told him rather than anything I told him. His father was always right to Tony."

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By

Ann Marsters

We are still getting letters in answer to our question about the childhood rhyme which begins "A tisket, a tasket, a green and yellow basket," and we wish to thank you all for your assistance.

ANN MARSTERS

But, so far, no one has been able to say just what IS a tisket, or a tasket. However, a very fine explanation comes from Anne S[illegible] of Dudley, Mass., who writes a little verse entitled "Tisket—Tasket":

"With tricks (they say) to every trade,
I'll wager—should you ask it—
Those words were by some poet made,
For one to rhyme with basket."

As for the complete rhyme itself we got several versions. The one that sounds most familiar [illegible] from Gertrude Bent, of N[illegible]

A tisket, a tasket,
A green and yellow basket
I wrote a letter to my love and on the way I lost it
A little [illegible] picked it up and put it in his pocket.

An[illegible] from Bettye Becker [illegible] after [illegible]

"I lost it once, I lost it twice; I lost it three times over. A little boy he picked it up and ran around the clover."

Of course we all remember the game that went with this and [illegible] continued: He [illegible] and he won't bite you . . . but he WILL [illegible] those were happy days.

MR. BOSTON

McCoy Weighs 182 Ready for Shucco | $15,000 for Lewis To Box Warrenton

By JACK CONWAY

Mr. Boston.

AL McCOY LOOKED like a perfectly conditioned athlete as he sat on the rubbing bench in his private dressing room at Buckley's Gym. His eyes were bright, he didn't have an ounce of excess weight on his body, while he told me he was eager to get into action against Tony Shucco in their 12-round bout for the New England heavyweight championship at Fenway Park on next Monday night.

McCoy was bandaging his own hands as he prepared for his workout. He placed a small rubber sponge inside of the bandage he wrapped around his left duke.

"The sponge acts as a shock absorber, and saves my hand from possible injury," said Al.

It was the first time I have seen a boxer use such a device, and it was easy to see where it would be helpful.

McCoy covered the bandages on his hand with heavy tape, picked up his headgear and started toward the ring. All boxers in training now wear headgears. The headgears protect them from injuries. Most boxers who have cauliflower ears got them during gym workouts. With headgears, boxers don't get such injuries in the gym.

Al warmed up by punching the small bag for two rounds. Al's hands went flying through the air at a speed almost as fast as lightning.

"McCoy has been boxing frequently and is in good condition," said Manager Bill Brennan. "He has beaten Natie Brown, Jack McCarthy and 'Red' Barry inside of two months. Next Monday night, McCoy will add Shucco to his list of victims."

Brennan spoke with an air of authority. Bill thinks Al is the greatest fighter in the world, and contends he will knock out Joe Louis if given a match with the champion.

Boxes With 'Tiger' Warrenton

WALTER JOHNSTON [illegible] McCoy [illegible] gloves. [illegible] Warrenton [illegible] light heavyweight [illegible] three rounds with McCoy. [illegible] were hard hitters [illegible] with both men tossing their Sunday punches. I have [illegible] many a feature bout [illegible] as much action as [illegible] McCoy and Warrenton in their gym workout.

McCoy was on his toes boring in all of the time. He kept firing punches from every angle and in [illegible] close with short sharp [illegible] [illegible]

McCoy then did some floor exercises, and called it a day. Al stepped on the scales and weighed 182 pounds, one pound less than Jack Dempsey was the day he knocked out the gigantic Jess Willard under a boiling hot sun at Toledo.

Would Rather Fight Louis

"I wish I were meeting Joe Louis instead of Shucco," said McCoy. "I would beat him. I never felt better. My timing is 100 per cent. I have shortened up my punches, and am hitting with great power when at close quarters."

McCoy and Bill Brennan will journey to New York [illegible] the Shucco bout, and will be at the ringside when Louis defends his title against Tommy Farr next Thursday night. Al wants [illegible] Louis' ring style as he is certain he will get a crack at him within a year.

"There are only a few opponents for Louis," asserted McCoy. "I look for the champion to knock out Tommy Farr next Thursday night. He may later take on Max Schmeling. If he gets by Schmeling he should be in line for a title shot

"I am prepared to meet Bob Pastor, Jimmy Braddock and Max Schmeling first if it is necessary for me to do so to get the Louis bout. I believe I can defeat any of these heavyweights.

$15,000 Offer for John Henry Lewis

"I'll put $15,000 up the minute Lewis signs for the bout," said Bob. "It won't be stage money. Real U. S. currency."

Warrenton will continue to work with McCoy each day. These training camp matches will speed Warrenton up and improve his boxing. The "Tiger" always could hit, especially with his right hand

Narragansett Races Speeded Up

WALTER O'HARA made a decided hit with race-goers when he had earlier post time for most of his races yesterday. O'Hara eliminated the long dreary post parades which have been one of the chief evils of New England racing. The jockies were told the post time for their races, and were allowed to warm up their horses or take them to the post at slow stages, provided they reported to Starter Bob Friend on time. The result was more prompt starts than was the case earlier in the week.

The long post parades have been [illegible] due to the fact New England race goers delay betting until the horses get out on the track. Thousands of dollars are poured through the mutuel machines after the [illegible] is at the barrier.

O'Hara is trying to educate the public to bet early. I believe that when race goers become convinced that there will not be long parades and delays at the post they will make certain they secure their mutuel tickets early.

With eight race programs at New England tracks, the patience of the public has often been taxed to the breaking point by the long delays between races. The O'Hara move is a step in the right direction.

Tony Plans To Go Limit

New Angle To Fight Games

Griffith Wrecks 'Buck'-'Wes' Duel

EXPERTS Pick M'Coy by K. O.

AL TO SEEK TITLE SHOT

Tony Shucco will be in condition to go 12 rounds at top speed next Monday night when he makes an attempt to regain the N. E. heavyweight championship from Al McCoy at Fenway Park in the feature of the Goodwin A. C. boxing show.

"I failed to beat McCoy in our two previous fights because I slowed up in the last two heats," Shucco said today, at his camp in Waltt's Mount, Malden, where he's been blasting his partners about with unusual ferocity.

"This time I won't make the same mistake," Tony declared. "Most of my fights have been over the 10-round distance and the extra two rounds make a great deal of difference. I'll pace myself differently next Monday night so that I'll blaze through rounds 11 and 12 without slowing a trifle."

EXPERTS DOPE DIFFERENTLY

[illegible] McCoy [illegible] Fenway [illegible] McCoy [illegible] two rounds [illegible] Dempsey in his last two fights, winning each by a knockout in the third frame.

Yet Shucco is truly a fistic marvel, a genius with his fists and a gentleman who seems to know McCoy's style like a book. Tony is a push-over for no one when he pulls on the gloves and goes in there to fight; and he'll be in there fighting for his ring existence Monday.

McCoy wants to win this one by a knockout; to shake Shucco off his trail for good. And if he wins he's going into New York next Thursday to challenge the winner of the Louis-Farr title fight. Mike Jacobs, new boxing czar, is ready to give McCoy a major shot

COLLINS HOT OVER

GROVE DUE ON MOUND TODAY

By JOE CASHMAN

Clark Griffith may think so highly of son-in-law Joe Cronin as to be planning to appoint the Red Sox pilot his successor as president of the Senators, but the Old Fox can hardly qualify as a bosom pal of other Fenway executives at this writing.

The Sox return home today for a three day engagement with the Solons which was supposed to be featured by a Sunday duel between "Buck" Newsom and their Wesley Cheek Ferrell.

This was as much as agreed upon when Cronin heeded Griff's plea to send Newsom out against Ferrell in Washington a few weeks back. But Boston went to see a return engagement of the clash of these pitching prima donnas that attracted some 20,000 at the Capital and would put at least 30,000 into the Yawkey Park on the coming Sabbath.

For Griff allowed "Bucky" Harris to pitch Ferrell overtime against the Yanks yesterday, which definitely eliminated temperamental Wesley as a starter in the local series.

And E. Trowbridge Collins is burned up plenty.

This slight is only in keeping however, with the rude treatment the Nats have been accorded the Sox this year.

Only last week, the Harris brigade [illegible] down on the banks of the Potomac.

And in the only other series the [illegible] have played since the Brethren [illegible] and Mr. Almada were swapped for Ben Chapman and Newsom, the Senators won two [illegible]

The deal may have helped the Sox against other clubs but certainly not in their battles with the Senators.

WITHIN STRIKING DISTANCE

Ten days ago they were playing their best ball of the season. [illegible] winning 12 [illegible] for the season's major league [illegible] they've dropped [illegible]

Yet they're still [illegible] with two games [illegible] September to [illegible]

In today's opener, Joe Cronin may or may not furnish Robert Moses Grove with the revised supporting cast he opened with in yesterday's finale in Philadelphia, won by Johnny Marcum, 4 to 3.

Eric McNair and Buster Mills were replaced by Oscar Melillo and Tommie Dallessandro in an effort to bolster the team's punch but this resulted in the most ironic [illegible] of the season being struck when McNair inserted as a pinch hitter in the eighth, came through with a home run with two on to win the game.

JIM TURNER GREAT

Local fans at the same time were [illegible] a pinch hitter give Bee Jim Turner a thrilling 2 to 1 victory over the Giants in 11 innings.

[illegible] by Reis, after coming through with safeties in the pinch role in the first two games of the series, [illegible] out a long fly to rescue Rabbit Warstler with the winning run.

Turner gave a masterful exhibition in gaining his 13th triumph and knocking the Terrymen three [illegible] back of the National League [illegible]

The Tennessee milkman should have scored a nine inning shutout over Harry Gumbert. He gave only [illegible] to the 11th and the one [illegible] came on a Mel Ott drive which might have been caught but [illegible] scored Jim Ripple all the way from first because Roy Johnson couldn't find the handle on the ball.

In the 11th, the Giants almost and the Bees actually won.

Gumbert was on second with one out in the first half when Bartell singled to center. DiMaggio [illegible] fielded the apple like an infielder and with a perfect strike threw out the Giants' pitcher at the plate.

Then in the home half [illegible] Warstler and Fletcher [illegible] first and third. [illegible] Mel [illegible] was called in to pitch to [illegible] but Reis substituted for [illegible] and cracked the first [illegible] for the game-winning fly.

THIL Impressed BY LOUIS

Pompton Lakes, N. J., Aug. 20 (AP)—Marcel Thil, the French middleweight champion who defends his title against Fred Apostoli in September, has seen the [illegible] and approves "mais oui."

The bald Frenchman sat in yesterday while Louis boxed six rounds with three sparring partners and was greatly impressed with the bomber's performance.

"Joe showed punching power with either hand, and his punches don't travel far," said Marcel. "He did some fine defensive work and showed much skill in getting out of range when his opponents were leading."

Thil, who has established headquarters near Louis' camp, refused to make any comparison between Louis and his opponent of next Thursday night, Tommy Farr. Nor would he predict the outcome of the bout.

Draws for A. L. Baseball Tourney

Pairings of the four surviving teams in the Junior American Legion's Northeastern Regional Baseball Championship Trenton, N. J., Berwyn, Ill., South Bend, Ind., and East Lynn, were made tonight at a Legion dinner.

The teams will play here Sunday, with the winners meeting Monday for the district title. The champions of regionals staged in Oklahoma and Charlotte, N. C., will vie for the right to meet the Lynn tournament victor for the national title later this summer.

Berwyn won over Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa teams, South Bend over Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and Pennsylvania teams, and East Lynn over Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine teams.

Cape League Player Joins Cleveland

Gallagher, formerly an all-around athlete at Providence College in Rhode Island, is the first Cape player to be signed by a major league team this summer.

As a member of Larry Donovan's Bourne club, Charlie was hitting for .344, fourth leading sticker in the circuit.

He makes his home in Newton and was graduated from Our Lady's high in that city in 1933.

Neil Mahoney, co-manager of the Harwich team with Chester Cahill, is out of the lineup for the last three weeks with a broken wrist [illegible] next Saturday [illegible]

All differences of opinion over eligibility rules for the fourth annual charity football game September 1 were settled amicably today at a meeting of coaches for the college all-star squad and coach "Curley" Lambeau of the Green Bay Packers, professional champions.

McNIFF WINS GOLF TITLE

JOE CASHMAN

Bob Quinn Travels Baseball Jungle Hoping for Best

By JOE CASHMAN

(Pinch Hitting for Austen Lake)

BOB QUINN HAS THROWN THE TOOTHbrush and other shirt into his bag and gone forth to scout the American Association, where last season he found hidden in the tall grass $100,000 worth of pitching talent in the persons of Lou Fette and Jim Turner, to whom a hundred other searchers had been blind for 10 years.

JOE CASHMAN

The Keeper of the Bees has little hope of being as lucky again because he combed that country once before this season and not only returned empty-handed but also muttering to himself about the scarcity of promising material.

But realizing that added strength will never come knocking on the door of his Gaffney street office, he figures he has everything to gain and nothing to lose by spending a little more time and money on the chance of lightning striking the second time.

While pitching is the Bees' [illegible] be the Ass[illegible] [illegible] parting.

There isn't a real hitter in the Association to my knowledge who isn't already owned or promised to some other big league club," he chirped, "so all that's left for me to do on this trip is try to find a few pitchers who can stop the sluggers our rivals will bring [illegible]

[illegible]

The leading thrower in the loop is one A. Cohen of Toledo, a green hand who hasn't won as many games for a Double A pennant contender as Fette has gained with a second division club in the majors. Moreover, if Cohen has what it takes and has no strings attached to him, Detroit will probably get first crack at him as the Tigers have a working agreement with the Mudhens.

Next in [illegible] Cardinals [illegible] are concerned.

And Charlie Wagner, just purchased by the Red Sox, and a Cardinal farmer named Macon seem to be the only other worthwhile prospects in that neck of the woods.

Still, Quinn has long contended that a baseball average can be a most [illegible] with him.

Won't Take 'No' for Answer

He wanted Lou, but he bid too late. The Bees had already bought the St. Paul sensation.

Turner, however, he definitely turned thumbs down on. And he's frank enough to admit today that he didn't think Milkman Jim could win in the majors even with a powerhouse like the New York Yankees.

Yet that same Tennessean [illegible] innings as he gained his [illegible] at the expense of the Giants, who had chased Fette in the first inning the day before [illegible] many victories as any Red Sox pitcher and more than any of them except Jack Wilson [illegible] most [illegible]

Turner could be an exception, but he isn't.

There's no need to go beyond the aforementioned Jack Wilson to find another. The only minor league mound "find" to click for the Fenway flock during the Yawkey regime, the Portland strongboy was brought in from the Coast League after a season which saw him win only two ball games.

And [illegible] Coast League reminds us of a nugget found in them thar [illegible] Fred Mitchell, when he was managing the Cubs.

Determined to make a change, Mitch took the file of the Sporting News and began to look through it. His eyes happened on a shortstop playing in the Coast League. He knew nothing about the boy, had never heard of him. The scouts said he wouldn't do.

He was hitting around .2[illegible] [illegible] about [illegible] not a bad average [illegible]

All Charlie did on coming up was to [illegible] the league and [illegible] big league [illegible]

And the Cubs won the pennant.

Tommy Farr's Eye Injured

TITLE Fight in DANGER

Long Branch, N. J., Aug. 19 (INS)—Tommy Farr, British Empire champion, received a severe cut under his right eye in training today, thus endangering the success of his world's heavyweight championship meeting with Joe Louis one week from tonight, at the Yankee Stadium.

A superficial examination in the dressing room revealed that the cut was about an inch in length but wasn't deep, it apparently having been inflicted by a scrape of the glove rather than by the force of the blow.

It was said that Farr planned to resume boxing on Saturday.

Originally he had intended to take the afternoon off but he [illegible] engaged Roscoe Manning for two rounds and then went [illegible] with Wagner.

The English man was making his best showing since coming here to [illegible] boxing and hitting well when Wagner's [illegible] came as a [illegible] in the afternoon.

McNIFF Wins Junior TITLE

[illegible] toward the 11th [illegible] he was still short of the green in three.

ANDERSON DROPS 7TH

Then came the fatal seventh for Anderson. McNiff from the rough to the left of the fairway played a [illegible] on to the front edge of the [illegible]. Then Anderson [illegible] too close to his ball and [illegible] a perfect [illegible] Bambrick [illegible] short [illegible] was not on the green [illegible] the hole.

Neither was on the ninth from the tee and the hole was halved with fours, and the match was all even at the turn.

McNiff lost the 10th by taking three to get down from the front edge of the green. Anderson holing a nice putt after pulling his second into the rough to the left of the green, but hole high.

Anderson held his one-hole advantage through the 11th, but he pushed his iron off the 12th tee and his ball rolled under a small pine tree, from where he was too strong coming out and lost the hole to a three. McNiff, playing a [illegible] from the heavy rough at the upper right hand corner of the green.

Anderson was in the rough again at the 14th and was just short of the green with a long iron, while McNiff got home in two and took the hole with a regulation par when Anderson's approach ran by the cup and he missed coming back.

Anderson was [illegible] lucky to get a half at the 15th for he pulled [illegible] his second and his [illegible] was on the back edge of the green. After a fine drive there was just enough pull on McNiff's second to catch the trap and he came out strong and ran well by the cup.

At the 15th, McNiff's second went over the green and after he'd missed his four, with a long putt from the front edge, Anderson holed a 25-footer for a birdie and a win squaring the match.

McNIFF WINS

After halving the 16th and 17th with regulation pars, the match [illegible] Anderson pushed his [illegible] into the rough, missed his second [illegible] was stymied by a row of trees and his third hit a tree and he'd played four when he reached the green.

McNiff played his second short but chipped on and holed his putt for a four and the Massachusetts junior championship title.

Schacht's Comedy Failed Him In Pinch

"I have done 18,000 miles of clowning," said Al, "and I have [illegible] mostly in the Midwest where they are just recovering from the drought. But the [illegible] stands out in my mind [illegible] 18,000 miles [illegible] was the [illegible]

"No kiding. I'm pulling out of a gas station in first gear—I travel by car and I'm getting pretty saddle sore with that jalopy—when a couple guys hop on the running board. I figure that they're just a couple of aggressive hitch-hikers whose thumbs were temporarily out of commission.

BAD CUSTOMERS

"So we ride along and I try to make conversation, which is a hard thing to do with them jammed into my front seat with me, and looking at me like they wanted to shoot me in cold blood.

"Finally we get out along a lonely stretch and one of the muggs, the biger one, said, 'Did it ever occur to you, chum, that this is a holdup.' Well I'm scared still, but I decided not to let them know it. So I talk some more, trying to change the subject, and I remember a couple things I said. I said

"'You fellas interested in big league baseball' hoping I might buy them off for a couple of passes.

"'Boys,' I said, 'that's great news. I'm Al Schacht. Yeah, Al Schacht.'

Then came the worst blow of all worse than the eighty-one bucks they eventually took off me. For one of the guys looked me right in the eye and said, 'I never heard tell of you bo.'

"I guess I wouldn't be too harsh with them," reminisced Al. "After all, they let me keep the car and they gave me back five bucks to buy gas with. They got out and one of them, the tough one, pressed his face up against mine—and I could see it was plenty tough, in that pale moonlight.

THREATENED

"'If you report this to the cops,' he growled, 'we'll get you if it takes us 50 years. Now, scram!'

"I scrammed all right, but when I got a few yards down the road I stopped and yelled back, 'If you boys make good in this business, would you send back my 76 slugs please?'

"That was near Tulsa, but I did pretty well in Oklahoma. Governor Marland is an admirer of mine. He made me a colonel on his staff. This is a very high class coloneley. All the best people are on it including Senator Wild Bill Lyons. But I'm the only Jewish gypsy on the list.

"You know how I hate to discuss my personal affairs with members of the press," Al continued, "but just off the record I want you to write that I am the only ball player who ever made a speech at the bottom of a mine.

"It happened in a place called Pennington Gap, Va., which had even the A. A. A. stumped. I found it, though, by sneaking up on it from Kentucky, in second gear, and they asked me to address the boys."

Al's figures are an interesting commentary on how minor league baseball audiences are supporting the novelty of a funny man running amuck in the stands and on the field. He drew 8,000 in Atlanta. The [illegible] on a Saturday [illegible] 4,200 last year but 13,000 this year with Schacht.

220,000 WITNESSES

The night Schacht was there the visiting team departed with $755. A total of 220,000 have seen his performance this season. This is [illegible] over the attendance at those clapboard stadiums over the same period last year.

"It's been a good thing for both me and baseball," said Al, generously sharing the credit. "I only wish I had taken up this clowning business years ago. The pay is good, the hours are nice, and I'm always running into little things like that sociable robbers."

U. S. WIGHTMAN TEAM FAVORED TO WIN

English Net Aces Far Below Par

INVADERS FIGURE TO LOSE 5-2

New York, Aug. 20 (AP)—America's tennis girls shouldn't have any difficulty making it seven straight over England in the Wightman Cup matches today and tomorrow at Forest Hills. Giving the visitors all the best of it, the final score figures to be around 5-2 in the home team's favor.

This must be about the weakest side England has mustered in the 14 year history of the event. Dorothy Round's decision to spend this month getting a trousseau together deprived the invaders of their best bet. She was the only one they had capable of beating [illegible] Helen Jacobs and Alice Marble.

KAY AILING

[illegible] Ruth Hardwick [illegible] won several important matches but her attack slows up when things get tight. Margot Lumb, Number 3 singles, is little more than a hard swinging novice.

The three of them don't stack up with the veteran [illegible] of Miss Jacobs, Miss Marble and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan [illegible].

Today's pairings in order were Marble vs. Hardwick, Jacobs vs. Stammers and the doubles Marble-Fabyan vs. Joan Ingram and Evelyn Dearman. An American sweep of the three matches seemed [illegible] likely, leaving the defenders needing only one more win in tomorrow's four matches [illegible].

SUGGEST SHAKE-UP

If the current series does turn out as one-sided as it looks from here, maybe somebody will suggest a shake-up. England's prospects of breaking the long sequence of American victories aren't getting any brighter. America could take in a little more territory and make a real class cut out of [illegible] thing that might in time [illegible] Davis Cup.

Helen Jacobs Real Net Champion

New York, Aug. 20 (AP—Class is the word for Helen Hull Jacobs.

The former queen of tennis has all the ingredients of class. She's beaten discouragements, snubs, wholesale injuries and not a few heartaches. Success and misery haven't affected her. It's easy and pleasant to talk to her. And to cap all her glory she not only refused to become what is known in the trade as a "tennis bum," but has gone on to succeed as an author in her own right.

Since Helen reached the top of the tennis world she has written two books and numerous magazine articles. Now to prove to her [illegible] and herself that she doesn't require her tennis name to sell as a writer she's written her first novel under an unknown pen name. And she sold the book strictly on its merits.

"I had to know," she explained between workouts at the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills. "My ambition is to become a successful author. I'm old enough (she's 29) to know you cannot become a successful writer on a tennis reputation. Anyway, in a few years they'll probably forget I once played tennis. So I submitted the book under a different name and be darned if it didn't click. I refuse to divulge the name of it—wait so it can get a chance. You know, anyway, that most readers believe a tennis player cannot know much about life."

GREAT COURAGE

Miss Jacobs [illegible] the tennis [illegible] has shown remarkable courage. At least a dozen times she has [illegible] to come back [illegible] hospitals [illegible]. She's had her appendix [illegible] Gall bladder troubles have [illegible] her. In drilling for the [illegible] last year she [illegible] reached the finals anyway, where she was beaten by Little Alice Marble [illegible] her knee a terrible whack with [illegible] racquet.

"I'm all taped up again like a mummy, but I'll be at my peak, if nothing else happens to me, by the time the nationals come around next month," she predicted. "I'd like to win at least one more national."

At Forest Hills most of the experts [illegible] the veteran [illegible] Miss Marble is the overwhelming choice. But the wise ones are watching the ex-champion who seems better today than ever. Our hunch is this may be Miss Jacobs' [illegible] though she refuses to say so. However, she's [illegible] changing over to England to stay for months.

"Writing," she says, "takes up a lot of time."

Sauer Eligible for All-Star Game

Chicago, Aug. 20 (INS)—George Sauer, former University of Nebraska star, will be at a halfback post for the Green Bay Packers when the professional champions battle the college All-Stars at Soldier field on September 1.

At a meeting attended by Curley Lambeau, Green Bay coach, and the staff of college coaches headed by Gus Dorais of the University of Detroit yesterday, it was agreed that Sauer is eligible for the game.

Previously the All-Stars had protested Sauer on the ground that he had accepted a coaching position and quit the Packers. After the All-Star game Sauer will leave the Packers for a coaching berth at New Hampshire and will see no more action on the field during the season.

The big All-Star squad continued scrimmaging today and coaches were particularly pleased by the work of Ed Jankowski, University of Wisconsin fullback, who has been ripping the opposing lines to shreds.

Marxes' Next To Be 'Room Service'

By HARRIET PARSONS

Copyright, 1937, International News Service

Los Angeles, Aug. 20—The Marx Brothers were in a huddle at RKO all day today and as we went to press all indications were that they would sign to star in "Room Service," the Broadway comedy hit for which the record price of $255,000 was paid.

Groucho will have the role of the chiseling producer created on the stage by Sam Levene. Harpo will be Faker, his stooge (played by Teddy Hart). Chico will portray Sasha Smirnoff, the stage-struck waiter. And what does that leave for M[illegible] Bene?

Doubtless every studio will hasten to make story capital out of the Sino-Japanese war. But Darryl Zanuck, who thinks in terms of headlines, is as usual leading the parade. "Shanghai Deadline," an original by La Salle Gilman, which Zanuck purchased time time ago, is being rushed before the cameras. It's a newspaper yarn about a reporter caught in the midst of the hostilities. Only one cast so far is Brian Donlevy who'll play the scribe. Norman Foster will meg.

Snapshots of Hollywood

The Goldwyn makeup department going mad trying to tone down CHARLIE McCARTHY'S garish red and yellow makeup so he'll look okay in Technicolor. BERGEN won't let them do much tampering with the McCARTHY beauty, and as for CHARLIE . . . he's furious. JOHN CARRADINE weary of being tagged "The Cadaverous Carradine," going beddie-bye every night at 9 in an attempt to gain 15 pounds and change his type.

Allston's Capitol To Show Epic

"Captains Courageous," that superb sea saga in which young Freddie Bartholomew, Spencer Tracey, Lionel Barrymore are featured, will be shown at popular prices at Allston's Capitol Theater for the week beginning today. Paired with it is "Midnight Madonna." Air conditioning within and free parking without are additional reasons for the Capitol's popularity.

'It's All Yours' Sterling Screen Fare at Keith's

By PEGGY DOYLE

Gay, sophisticated comedy, a [illegible] the Normandie and love interest with "It Happened One Night" appeal are just three of the reasons why [illegible] "It's All Yours" is a must [illegible] week at Keith's Memorial.

THE CAST

Linda Gray	Madeleine Carroll
Jimmy Barnes	Francis Lederer
Baron Rene de Montigny	Mischa Auer

Judge Reynolds	Richard Carle
Dabney	Arthur Hoyt

This [illegible] along with "Flight From Glory," an action adventure [illegible] with Chester Morris and Whitney Bourne and the coronation of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth in Technicolor make up the three feature screen program [illegible] at Keith's.

Madeleine Carroll, Francis Lederer and Mischa Auer are the stars of "It's All Yours," and [illegible] also [illegible] and her respective roles that their teaming amounts to one of those perfect Tinker to Evers to Chance type plays.

The flawless, beautiful Carroll who was beginning to get into our hair as a glamour girl emerges in this her latest release as a very human creature and a swell actress. And would you believe it, the girl has humor and to spare.

It may be that her romantic partner, Francis Lederer, this previewer's idea of an actor who's forgotten more about acting than most of Hollywood's white-haired boys will ever remember, had something to do with it. He is effortless, convincing and completely captivating in a role that is right up his thoroughfare.

Mischa Auer, arch-comic of countless screen bits whose earliest rememberance is roaming barren Siberia as a member of a wild parentless band of children, is the third angle of this intriguing cinematic triangle. In the role of a titled fortune hunter who is such a connoisseur at ordering dinner and selecting corsages that the gilded wooees foot the bills and [illegible]

'DON'TS' WILL GOVERN NEWTOWNE COURT

Vigilant watching and a set of iron-clad rules will preserve the luxurious appearance of Newtowne Court, the federal housing project soon to be completed in Cambridge.

Regulations as strict as those imposed in exclusive residential apartments will be vigorously enforced to prevent accidental or malicious destruction of the surfaces of the new apartment village, Charles McMenimen, housing manager, revealed.

No screws, nails or bolts may be driven into the walls. No baby carriages may be parked in the hallways, no advertising signs or banners may be displayed in the buildings.

Each tenant will be required to sign a pledge of obedience, to 28 specific "do's and don'ts," as each month's lease is renewed. If a tenant fails to observe the rules, the government will refuse to renew the lease at the month's end.

Janitors will halt parties which threaten damage to the premises. Irregular inspections will be made to insure cleanliness in each apartment.

Tech Boy Guilty Of Tipsy Driving

Charles F. Tillinghast, Jr., 21, a Harvard graduate and summer student at Technology, was found guilty today in municipal court on a charge of drunken driving and appealed a $35 fine.

The student, said by police to be the son of a Providence attorney, was found not guilty on charges of operating dangerously and operating without a licensee.

He was arrested after his car allegedly had crashed into a police cruiser car at Marlborough and Exeter streets, Back Bay, injuring two policemen.

The Brighter Side

There was a pie-baking demonstration before the International Stewards and Caterers' Association, in convention assembled in Philadelphia, the other night.

A Mr. Monroe of Hollywood, who claims to be America's No. 1 pie expert, asserted that apple pie is the nation's ranking pie, with peach pie a close second, a statement that can scarcely be disputed, at least as far as the apple pie is concerned.

The apple pie has been our most prominent American pie for generations, and it has long been a matter of great wonderment to us that no one in a center as populous as New York City has ever learned to properly concoct this delicacy.

You might think that with the immigration to New York city down through the years, from upstate New York and from apple pie-making communities of note in the Middle West some traveler would have introduced to the big city the true method of making the apple pie, but apparently not.

AIDED NATION'S PROGRESS

It is quite likely that the immigrants immediately took up, as a change from the apple pie on which they were nurtured from infancy, the various pies indigent to the metropolis, such a Boston cream pie, coconut custard pie, lemon meringue and other gooey creations, and were eventually weaned away from the sturdy apple pie which is one of the foundations of this republic.

An occasional demand from stray customers suffering with nostalgia for the apple pie of their youth induced the New Yorkers to produce what now passes in the big town for apple pie, but which we contend is strictly an imitation and not too good an imitation at that.

We concede that on custards, and creams, and meringues, New York is in a class by itself. It produces a strawberry cream pie that should be reserved for a man's last moments, so he may die happy. It has a lemon chiffon pie that belongs to the angels.

But these, we think, are more or less arty pies, and certainly they lack the solidity, and the nourishment of the apple pie. We never won any wars on strawberry cream, or lemon chiffon, nor built any brick houses on custard pie. It was the good old apple pie wedged into the American dinner pail that was responsible for the progress of this nation.

GLUE-LIKE FOUNDATION

New York City bats about .265 with the pumpkin pie, which is just a fair average, when you figure that a city like Topeka, Kansas, will hit .355 on the old pumpkin, with it's eyes closed, and Youngstown, Ohio, will do .380 just half trying. But of course the pumpkin pie is not only a seasonal pie, but a science, and perhaps not a fair test.

The apple pie, however, is so elemental that it should be easy enough for any American city, and when we contemplate the deplorable results achieved with the apple pie in New York, we have to shudder. Consider us now taking time out for shudders.

They put something in the apple pie in New York that is not exacty glue, perhaps, but that looks like glue, and tastes like glue. We have consulted every legal authority in this country, and we find no statute, or judicial opinion, that justifies this act.

The trouble is, we we do not find any statute, or legal opinion, forbidding it, either, though there ought to be. We fear that the apple pie makers of Pueblo, Colorado, where the foundations for our own bone and sinew, and terrific endurance, were laid on apple pie, will think we are exaggerating when we speak of this indecency toward the apple pie in New York, but we can ship them cut a New York apple pie as indisputable evidence, if they wish.

BAN THE RAISINS

We will take oath that besides the substance that looks like glue, sometimes they even put raisins in the apple pie in New York, which of course is just sheer desecration.

The New Yorkers also put that thing that looks like glue in peach pie, but we can forgive that, as we are no peach pie fan, and nothing that happens to a peach pie can arouse our indignation. We always get them with soggy bottoms, anyway. But we can have no respect for anybody that mistreats the apple pie.

We once monkeyed around with a play with Mr. Howard Lindsay, the celebrated playwright, and we thought he was a high class man, possessed of all the finer human attributes, and of tremendous delicacy, and we had him to our house for dinner, of which the crowning triumph was an apple pie made after a recipe that is formally registered as part of the curriculum of the public schools of Colorado, and taught to all children, male and female.

ASKS FOR MUSTARD

When a man's sized slug of this pie was set before Mr. Lindsay, he asked if he might have some mustard. He said he knew it was unusual, but that he liked mustard on his apple pie. We thought Mr. Lindsay was spoofing at first, then we saw he was in earnest. Later we learned that Mr. Lindsay is noted for his weird taste for mustard on apple pie.

We got him out of the house as speedily and as quietly as possible. The cook had overheard, and was honing up the meat cleaver. We hope Mr. Lindsay never goes to Colorado and asks anybody for mustard for his apple pie. They would shoot him settin'.

CROWDS WATCH NEW AIR GIANT BEING BUILT

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Aug. (INS — Undaunted by the tragic fate of the airship Hindenburg in which so many of their friends and colleagues were killed, a crew of 150 highly skilled mechanics under direction of Knute Eckener, son of the famous dirigible veteran, is putting the finishing touches to LZ-130 which is to take the Hindenburg's place in transatlantic air traffic this fall.

The Lakehurst disaster has tremendously increased public interest in anything connected with dirigibles and thousands of Germans and tourists from all parts of the world are flocking to Friedrichshafen to see the new airship in the making.

In order to prevent visitors from interfering with work, a special grandstand has been erected within the hangar from where the spectators have an impressive view of the complete light metal structure which is already more than half-covered with fabric. Mechanics hanging on steel ropes within the giant network of aluminum girders give visitors the impression of human flies caught in a huge spider web.

827 FEET LONG

The LZ 130, like the Hindenburg, is 827 feet long and has a maximum diameter of 137 feet. Nothing has been altered in the construction of the light metal skeleton because the Hindenburg flight record, as well as investigation by American authorities into the causes of the Lakehurst fire, has not caused the slightest doubt as to its ability to withstand even the great. it stresses possible in thunderstorms over the ocean.

The aluminum alloys used for construction of both girder rings and bars linking these rings to each other are, as Knute Eckener stated, "light like a feather and tough as the famous Damascene sword steel." A ten-foot alloy bar can easily be lifted with one hand.

DEFINITE DECISION DELAYED

Pending definite American agreement to supply Germany with helium gas for commercial traffic, the original plan for the gas containers inside the giant ship has been changed because a larger quantity of helium is necessary to give the same lifting capacity as hydrogen.

Definite decisions about arrangements of the helium bags will, however, be made only after Dr. Eckener and Dr. Duerr, chief constructor and designer of the Airship Building Corporation, return from America.

Like the Hindenburg, the new ship will have four crude motors of 1050 HP each which will give the ship a maximum speed of 85 miles per hour. The fuel supplies, consisting of 132,000 pounds of crude oil are carired in huge tanks at the bottom of the hull and are forcefed to the motors by pipe lines which can be opened or closed from the control stand afore.

All the control and crew's as well as passengers' quarters are distributed in two decks.

SPECIAL PASENGER SECTION

The passengers' quarters amid ship are designed to give the greatest possible comfort to air travelers. The upper main deck has a big dining room on one side and a reading room on the other.

MDC Nature Walk Sunday in Fells

Unusual rock formations and late summer flowers will be featured in the nature walk in the Middlesex Fells, in Medford, on Sunday afternoon under supervision of the WPA and the Metropolitan District Commission's recreation division.

Several hundred bird houses have been constructed and spots to erect these shelters are being picked in various sections of M. D. C. territories. The public has been invited to choose sites for these houses. On the nature walk bird lovers are invited to join the walkers in the search for the best possible bird house locations.

Married 66 Years, Couple Celebrate

Married 66 years and still happy—that's the record of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Chamberlain, of Capen street, Medford.

Quietly celebrating their wedding anniversary, Mrs. Chamberlain said their life together has been one of continued happiness.

"Any couple can live happily together if they mind their own business and do not try to boss each other too much," said the 91-year-old wife.

"It's got to be give and take, or any marriage can be unhappy. That's what's the matter with so many of these young folks. They know how to give all right, but they never learned how to take."

Woolen Goods Outlook Is Improving

New York, Aug. 20—Business in wool goods markets this week was generally slow, but sentiment showed improvement when it became known that stocks of piece goods are far from burdensome and the trade is not facing a period of heavy liquidation as was generally supposed, according to the New York Wool Top Exchange Service. Even clothing manufacturers who were inclined to view the future gloomily are now convinced that business during the coming fall season will be sufficient to clean up available stocks of merchandise and maybe a good deal more.

"Manufacturers have already started to ship fall garments to retail accounts and expect a good response from consumers, especially in the farm States, where money is more plentiful than it has been in years, and where sales for the last seven to eight years have been below normal," says the Exchange Service. "While August sales of men's and women's garments have not been satisfactory, they are expected to improve when vacationists return. Meanwhile, piece goods values are steady for the reason that mills cannot buy their wool any cheaper and manufacturing costs are on the ascent."

Walker to Face LaGuardia Today

New York, Aug. 20 (INS)—New York's most violent political contrasts—Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia and former Mayor James J. Walker—will meet today when Walker appears before the board of estimates, presided over by LaGuardia, on behalf of the Transit Commission. Walker, whose employment as assistant counsel for the commission at $12,000-a-year has created a storm, will appeal for funds to eliminate grade crossings on the Long Island railway in Brooklyn and Queens.

LaGuardia was elected mayor on a Fusion ticket which grew out of the investigation of the Walker administration. Walker resigned in the midst of hearings on his removal before Franklin D. Roosevelt, then governor.

Proposed Malden School Hits Snag

Malden's proposed $1,200,000 new high school faced an indeterminate fate today as the city experienced difficulty in negotiations for a $700,000 loan.

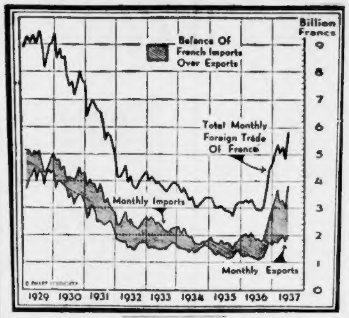
Mayor Dever received word Wednesday a $500,000 federal grant for the project was on the way. It had been planned to raise the balance by a loan. But under the municipal finance act Malden is entitled to borrow only $180,000.

Firm Settles Tax Bill for $475,000

A tax setlement of $475,000 by the Conveyancers' Title Insurance Mortgage Company had been effected by the Boston City Collector.

Mayor Mansfield, announcing the settlement declared this settled the controversy raging since allegations were made recently at a City Council committee meeting that the assessors would settle a tax bill amounting to $884,367 for $316,000.

French Foreign Trade



Foreign trade of France in June amounted to 5,804,000,000 francs, highest monthly total since the middle of 1931. However, in Paris the trade figures are regarded as decidedly unsatisfactory. Imports in June amounted to 3,807,000,000 francs, while exports were 1,997,000,000 francs.

For the first six months of this year, imports exceeded exports by 9,247,000 francs, about double the import surplus in the first half of last year.

HOG SLAUGHTER

Seasonal Increase Absent

A smaller-than-usual seasonal increase in slaughter supplies of hogs this fall and early winter is in prospect, it was reported today by the ureau of Agricultural Economics. Reason is the large corn crop which will induce farmers to feed hogs to heavier weights.

Another factor in the hog situation is the likelihood that the storage demand for hog products will be less strong this fall than last, the Bureau said. It is probable, therefore that the seasonal decline in hog prices this fall and early winter will be of about average proportions.

The supply of feed grains per head of livestock on farms is expected to be the largest in several years. And as the hog-corn price ratio will be relatively favorable for hog production, the Bureau looks for a much larger 1938 spring pig crop than the 1937 spring production.

Inspected hog slaughter in July was reported the smallest for that month in 41 years. And for the 3 months, May, June and July, the slaughter was only slightly larger than the very small slaughter in the corresponding months of 1935.

The short supplies of hogs this summer was the result of last year's meagre feed crop, just as the small slaughter in the summer of 1935 was the result of the severe drought of 1934, the bureau explained.

Sharp reductions in storage stocks of pork and lard were reported for July; nevertheless, stocks of pork were 6 per cent larger this August 1 than last, and storage holdings of lard 34 per cent more than on August 1 last year. Stocks of pork on August 1, however, were below average.

The bureau reported some increase in exports of lard during the past three months, but said that exports of pork during the first nine months of 1936-37 were the smallest in many years.

Drouth Perils Maine Forests

Augusta, Me., Aug. 20 (AP)—Forest fire conditions in Maine, except in the extreme northern sections, were described today by State Forest Commissioner Waldo N. Seavey as "the most hazardous so far this season."

"Conditions are bad," Seavey said, "because of the extreme dryness, due to lack of rain over a considerable period, and the strong winds we are getting generally throughout the state."

Shrewsbury Gets Funds for School

A federal grant of $176,400 for construction of a new junior and senior high school building at Shrewsbury assured the school committee today of funds to begin work on the school.

The federal grant was announced by Andrew H. Peterson, state director of the Public Works Administration.

HANEY Praises SEC

MODERATION NEEDED

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, Aug. 20—One of the best things that has come out of the New Deal has been the regulation of the stock market.

Even a good thing, however, may be abused. Thus it is not surprising to find that Charles R. Gay, president of the New York Stock Exchange, in his recent report, makes a convincing case for more moderation on the part of the government.

Considerable regulations has long been recommended by unbiased economists. There has in the past been far too much dishonest manipulation of stock prices. Fraud has existed in the shape of spreading false rumors, issuing false reports and prospectuses, etc. Gambling by persons who could ill afford to lose has been unduly encouraged.

The exchange itself had gradually sought to cure these ills, and had done much to improve conditions. But the job required outside pressure to carry through strong measures, and to this extent the present administration deserves lasting credit.

Unfortunately, however, the administration has been loath to see the good important functions which the stock exchange performs. Thus it has gone beyond the correction of abuses and regulation in public interest. It has sought to force its own peculiar social reforms, and to make the S.E.C. an agency for social planning and collectivism.

The desirable and important social functions of the stock exchange is to furnish an organized market for securities which will make capital liquid and direct investment funds into the most productive channels.

It enabled individuals to buy or sell large amounts of stock in old companies. It enabled them to issue and float large amounts of stock in new ventures. It makes such transactions possible in a very short time, and with a minimum of disturbance. That is what is meant by "liquidity."

Assuming honesty and intelligence, the stock market registers the valuations that well-posted persons attach to various business concerns so that all men may read. This helps greatly to guide the use of the society's investment funds.

Therefore, when regulation goes so far that liquidity is impaired or the ready reflection of objective values is prevented, we may be sure that it has gone too far. This is exactly what Mr. Gay now claims, and I, for one, believe that he is right.

For example, the multitude of voluminous reports required is so great that their purpose is defeated. They undoubtedly prevent some fraud, but they are so voluminous that they are read by few, and so expensive that the honest as well as dishonest are deterred.

Then, too, by limiting the amount of loans which banks and brokers may grant for buying and carrying stocks to 45 per cent of market value, credit is unduly restricted to some cases. Strict margin rules may protect the fool, but harm others.

In my opinion, "short selling" has been too greatly restricted, and this decreases the liquidity of the market.

Thus we find the stock market is "thin," "narrow," and "illiquid." In other words, bids and offers are often far apart, relatively few issues are traded in each day, and the sale of any large amount unduly effects prices.

The outstanding fact is the decline in the volume of transactions of the exchange. As a result, a small change in volume often brings wide fluctuations in prices.

When all is said, however, it remains true that no small part of the present condition of the stock market is due to deeper evils than mere regulations of trading, margins, etc. There would be much less complaint if the government were not obsessed with grandiose schemes of "social plannings" and if there were reasonable certainty as to the future purchasing power of the dollar. And doubtless the abolition of the tax on capital gains would help.

A square deal for all honest business, including the utilities, would make a big difference.

Woman, 59, Beaten By Purse Thieves

Danvers, Aug. 20—Mrs. Mary H. Sullivan, 59, mother of Town Counciller James H. Sullivan, today was recovering in the Hunt Memorial Hospital from a severe beating at the hands of three young men, who also seized her pocketbook containing $1 as she walked home from church.

The trio jumped out of a small roadster, slugged her and grabbed the pocketbook. Mrs. Frank Ransom notified police and then went to Mrs. Sullivan's aid.

N.E. Trade Picture Bright

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Despite the failure of retail sales to hold up as anticipated because of the hot weather, the general outlook for the fall trade in New England is not only satisfactory, but actually shows signs of improving. Even now wholesalers report fairly active business, according to Dun & Bradstreet's weekly review of conditions in this section.

Other bright spots in the New England picture are supplied by the sharp improvement in hide quotations, the stability of finished cotton goods prices, and the movement of woolen piece goods after a rather prolonged period of quiet. The sole blot on the business and trade picture in this area is the poor performance of building and engineering. Operations started during the past three months actually were below 1936 figures and there has been a lessening of the call for heavy building materials. Lumber is fairly active on a firm price level, but it is the only material that can be said to be in demand.

• • •

The Securities and Exchange Commission which has been so much in the news of late is about to postpone two of the most important pieces of business that have come before it. Broker-dealer segregation and cash-trading are expected to be put one side. Pending a study of regulations already in effect is the reason for the delay of the first, the second is in abeyance due to the current market's thinness which Stock Exchange President Gay so pertinently commented on. While it is possible that these probabilities are stressed in the financial district because wish is once again fathering a thought, we are inclined to believe that nothing will be done.

• • •

If it so happens that these matters are put one side, the chances are that the financial fraternity will not need to worry about them for many months to come. The changes in the commission itself will be enough to slow up its mechanism.

• • •

Although stock prices are entitled to their rally after the decline which set in last Saturday, it is hardly an electrifying performance. This writer is skeptical because he feels that the decline went too far and lasted too long after the upside breakout of last week. An upturn in prices is not enough to prove the bulls oft-repeated contention that August is an upside month. What is needed now is a good reaction with buyers stemming selling above the Thursday low point. Such action by stock prices would trace a convincing pattern on charts.

• • •

The lack of volume on the decline is being put forward as a valid reason for maintenance of bullish ideas. This is not the case according to the records. In this era of managed markets, volume is naturally restricted and the market has repeatedly begun important declines on small and relatively unimportant volume.

Curb Stocks Are Lower

New York, Aug. 20 (INS)—Curb stocks opened very quiet today and fractionally lower. Industrials were the chief losers.

Dewey & Almy To Vote Splitup

A proposal for a three-to-one split-up of the common stock of Dewey & Almy Chemical Co. will be considered by stockholders at a special meeting August 27. They also will vote on a proposal for issuance of convertible preferred stock to be offered to present holders of prior preference and class "B" preferred stock.

Brown Co.

Berlin, N. H., Aug. 20—The $75,000,000 Brown Company, New England's largest rayon pulp and paper manufacturer, is reported to be operating at capacity, with three shifts of 40 hours each. Output is 65 tons of wood pulp a day; half is shipped to supply demand from the booming rayon industry.

STOCK Prices Work LOWER

U. S. STEEL HOLDS GAIN

New York, Aug. 20—Lower prices generally followed a short-lived rally in today's stock market. While U. S. Steel and a few others managed to retain portions of their initial advance, declines running to around 2 points were widely distributed near the fourth hour. Dealings were comparatively slow.

The market was chilled by another drop in U. S. Government Bonds and the listless performance of corporation loans. Japanese bonds, at the same time, exhibited a better tone. Commodities were uneven.

Inclined to give ground were shares of Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, General Motors, Chrysler, Motor Products, J. I. Case, International Harvester, Goodyear, U. S. Rubber, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, American Telephone, Western Union, American Metal, Allis Chalmers, American Locomotive, Westinghouse, Phillips Petroleum, Texas Corp., Standard Oil of N. J., Servel, Bethlehem, Republic, Wheeling Steel, American Steel Foundries and Eastman Kodak.

Pointing upward for awhile were Macy, Deere, Oliver Farm, National Lead, Reynolds Metals, Public Service of N. J., Southern Railway, Pennsylvania, Northern Pacific, National Biscuit and Loew's.

Coppers weakened at the start. The export metal sold as low as 14 cents a pound before stiffening. Talk heard a few weeks ago of a boost in the current domestic 14-cent price was reversed and some observers in this field suggested no surprise would be occasioned if this rate were reduced slightly in the near future.

A more than seasonal increase in last week's freight loadings failed to steam up the rails, although several did relatively well.

TRADE OUTLOOK

Trading gloom was neutralized somewhat before the opening by optimistic week-end business reviews. Dun & Bradstreet found store inventories depleted at many points and buyers in wholesale divisions seemingly displaying less hesitancy in making purchases. In some sections retail distribution was said to have been the best of the season.

That progress in the commercial field is continuing notwithstanding the recent erratic movement of shares was indicated by Federal Reserve figures disclosing loans to industry and agriculture by member banks registered their third consecutive upturn in the week ended August 18.

Sterling, at the beginning of foreign exchange transactions, was off ⅛ of a cent at $4.98 13-1. The French franc was .00¼ of a cent lower at 3.75⅜ cents.

Steel Alloy

Santiago, Cuba, Aug. 20—For each ton of steel produced in mills of the United States, about 14 pounds of manganese metal are required to give the required hardness and durability, according to engineers of the Cuban-American Manganese Corporation here.

Carloadings Are Higher

Washington, Aug. 20 (INS)—Loading of revenue freight for the week ended August 14 totaled 777,382 cars, an increase of 7676 cars above the preceding week, and an increase of 40,804 cars above the corresponding week of last year, the Association of American Railroads announced today.

Bar Gold

MARKET Worrying BULLS

PUBLIC LONG OF STOCKS

New York, Aug. 20 (INS)—Market bulls are in rather desperate straits today.

Another day of decline yesterday, the fourth in a row has dealt the constructive contingent a damaging blow and undermined speculative sentiment to a point where anything conceivably can happen.

The industrials sagged 2.11 points for their sharpest drop in some time. Rails were down 17 cents and utilities lost 37 cents.

While ordinarily, technical conditions would call for a rally after so sustained a setback as has been experienced this week, there is no over-abundance of confidence in the street on prospects for an immediate turnabout.

For one thing, the public has been a heavy buyer of stocks on balance for weeks, on the theory that the early summer decline had discounted all the unfavorable factors in the situation and that a big autumn advance was in the cards.

LIQUIDATION FEARED

It doesn't take the small trader much to be frightened out of his holdings, and unless the market situation straightens itself out in speedy order, the danger of public liquidation is not to be overlooked.

A long list of ranking speculative leaders were under the hammer yesterday, with U. S. Steel, Union Carbide, Chrysler, Westinghouse, Sears Roebuck, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Bethlehem Steel, and American Smelting off from 1 to nearly 3 points.

Encouragement was derived from the fact that the rail sector put up a good show of resistance, but naturally was unable to stand up in the face of weakness elsewhere.

As for the continued disheartening performance of utilities, there is considerable talk going the rounds of extensive investment trust liquidation based on the unattractive potentialities for important earning increases.

Liverpool Cotton Prices Show Improvement

Liverpool, Aug. 20 (INS)—Moderate business attended the spot cotton market here today, as prices showed a slightly improved tone. Receipts totaled 6000 bales, 2100 of which were American.

Strict good middling at noon was quoted at 6.63, good middling at 6.33, strict middling 6.08, middling 5.78, strict low middling 5.53, low middling 5.53, strict good ordinary 4.53 and good ordinary 4.13.

Cotton futures opened steady and by noon improved positions moderately. October sold for 5.61, December 5.62, January 5.65, March 5.69 and May 5.73.

Bar Silver

Comments of Brokers

While I expect the liquidation to dry up soon, it is best to continue conservative trading policies for a while longer in view of latest domestic political developments, the poor technical action of the rail group and the weakness of the steels yesterday. —J. S. Wilson, Josephthal and Company.

Further decline now seems likely, from a trading viewpoint, and volume may expand as prices recede.—H. D. Comer, Paine, Webber and Company.

There are many signs that business prospects for the fall are good. Current uneasiness in the junior markets should soon result in another opportunity to pick up attractive securities at bargain prices.—F. H. Richardson, Southgate and Company.

Failure of the market on the next rally to move into new high ground, followed by a penetration of the low levels established on the present decline, would be construed as an unfavorable technical development. —J. F. Malloy, Hornblower and Weeks.

It might be that poor market action this week is a temporary reflection of weakness in London and uneasiness over the Far Eastern position but it might also be forecasting disappointing business over the next few months.

—G. M. P. Murphy & Co.

The belated reaction may run further and if so should be regarded as affording buying opportunities.—J. P. Maher, Shields & Co.

Activity shows no signs of broadening importantly on the setback. In line with this technical picture, we are inclined to look for nearby improvement.—J. S. Bache & Co.

Builders Need Mass Output

By CHARLES R. HOOK
President, the American Rolling Mill Company

New York, Aug. 20—In a nation which has created so many marvelous products which make life easier—products which industry has made available at prices within reach of the average man—it seems ironical that there has been so little progress in applying mass production principles to home construction.

Many new and helpful devices have been perfected that eliminate household drudgery. Many splendid building materials have been developed. Yet the big job of efficiently fitting and assembling these materials into a finished home remains practically the same as always.

It is true that some contractors employ power driven machinery, but usually the house is assembled piece by piece, each of many small parts being cut and assembled on the site. This process is slow, laborious, wasteful, and is at least partly responsible for headlines in yesterday's paper—"Costs Block Home Building."

• • •

Our own studies in the field of metal house construction, carried on over the past five years, convinces us that lower cost and better constructed homes for the lower income groups can be obtained by large scale, properly planned construction.

Passing laws is not going to solve the housing problem. What we need, in my opinion, is an organization such as the Bureau of Standards, which would first analyze the present methods of construction and use of materials, and by presenting the facts to building presenting the facts to the building construction companies and building trades endeavor to work out a program that will reduce the cost of construction and at the same time improve annual labor earnings. By proper planning and cooperation it can be done. Modern industry, properly encouraged, has the initiative and the intelligence to do the task.

• • •

Whenever modern mass production methods can be applied to home construction, we shall surely obtain lower costs and higher quality and at the same time widen the market for homes.

While the price trend of home construction has continued steadily upward over a period of years, the costs of products manufactured by modern mass production methods has just as consistently decreased, to say nothing of the improved quality of present day products. Radios, refrigerators, automobiles, household appliances and many other useful articles cost less and are of far better quality than even ten years ago.

The studies of the committee for economic recovery, which made an extended analysis of the entire home ownership problem both in the United States and abroad, and of which I am a member, show that we need an average of 750,000 new homes each year to take care of pent-up demands and normal growth of population. Also that 35 per cent of our homes should not cost more than $3000, and 75 per cent not over $5000 in order not to place too great a strain on the budget of the average family. At present we are falling far short in both requirements.

• • •

A large-scale, properly integrated home-building industry should be able to produce an improved house, designed for better living and priced at the level of the average man's pocketbook. This is the challenge alike to American industry and to the government of the United States.

There is nothing that will so greatly improve social conditions, reduce unemployment and help a sustained and sound prosperity for our entire population like a properly conceived and executed home-building program.

Lendable Funds Show Increase

Washington, Aug. 20 (AP)—Excess reserves of member banks in the Federal Reserve System increased $40,000,000 to $780,000,000 during the week ended August 18.

The weekly Federal Reserve Board report today showed the upturn in lendable funds was due to a reduction in Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve Banks.

Whole Universe Shrinking View Of Scientist

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

New York, Aug. 20—Dr. S. Sambursky, 36, of the Hebrew University, Jerusalem, today gives in the Physical Review, evidence that the whole universe is sinking, with everything in it, including even the measurable units of energy.

His idea is as startling as Einstein's discovery of the curvature of space-time, and somewhat analogous in setting. Einstein was also a young man when he offered the world his then unbelievable theory. Sambursky, German-born, has been a quiet, unknown scientific worker in Jerusalem since 1924, except for two years of scientific work in Holland.

Sambursky is scarcely known in this country. But the American Scientific Journal in accepting his article considered both its worthiness and Sambursky's standing among scientists.

TELESCOPE DISCOVERY

His evidence of shrinkage comes from recent discoveries made with the world's largest telescope at Mt. Wilson, Calif. This telescope shows that apparently the nebulae, which are island universes of stars, way out at the edge of visibility, are all rushing away from the earth.

Their apparent speeds run up to 25,000 miles a second.

But about a year ago Dr. Edwin Hubble, one of the observers with the big telescope, reported at Oxford, England, the discovery of a puzzle in the expansion. The slightly reddish-colored light of these nebulae failed to substantiate fully the theory of expansion.

Dr. Hubble said it might be necessary to discover a new principle of nature to explain what the big telescope saw.

Dr. Sambursky offers the new principle today.

Under the theory of expansion, the light of these distant nebulae would be red if they were going away.

ENERGY SHRINKING

But Dr. Sambursky points out that the same thing would be seen in the telescope provided everything between here and these distant nebulae is slowly, uniformly shrinking.

He shows this by using mathematics, substituting the shrinkage as a factor in calculations already previously used to prove the expansion idea.

Several things are shrinking, he says. These include the "universal lengths of atomic physics." One of these lengths is the radius of the electron, smallest known particle of matter.

Another is the unit of energy. The measuring rod for this unit is known as "H," a tiny fraction, which can be written as 6.54 over 10 followed by 26 zeroes.

This "H" was discovered by Dr. Max Planck. Nobody knows just why it is true, but even industrial science has proved the existence of "H." For example, if an electrical scientist wants to know the energy in a photoelectric cell, or "eye," he multiplies its vibration frequency by "H." He gets the right answer.

EXPLAINS PUZZLE

Dr. Sambursky shows mathematically that if "H" is shrinking, as he thinks, along with the dimensions of the fundamental particles of matter, the puzzle of the distant nebulae can be explained.

If this universal shrinkage is true, he says it can be proven. One way is to measure the wave length of a ray of light now, and again at the same point 350 years from now. He suggests as a test the red light given off by cadmium. The length is about one twenty-five-thousandths of an inch.

In 350 years, Dr. Sambursky says, that length would decrease by one unit of its third decimal. For the time being, he adds, this test can't be counted upon.

The shrinkage of everything as pictured has no effect on man but it has one interesting point. It is, says Dr. Sambursky, a new way of "distinguishing the future from the past," because the shrunken parts of the universe are the latest.

Human senses do not need this new method for anything yet discovered. But scientists have speculated that somewhere in the unknown parts of the universe the "arrow of time" may point in a different direction than here on earth.

Somewhere, that is, things may be growing younger. If instruments find such a place, Dr. Sambursky's test, provided it is verified, would reveal time which had reversed.

Finally, Dr. Sambursky shows that his new shrinking "H" explains the puzzle of gravitation in a new way. This explanation of gravitation he promises to pubish more full in a separate paper.

'Howdy Prosperity' Say Rent Men

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Things are much better all over the country. Congress just voted another twenty million dollars to build bird baths for roaches under the kitchen stove.

Financial experts say that increased prices of apartments in New York City is a sign of prosperity. Guess the country will be entirely recovered when nobody can afford to pay the rent.

The Three Wars

THREE great conflicts are raging in the world today, we are reminded by H. R. Knickerbocker, International News Service correspondent.

One of these, the war in Ethiopia, we had almost forgotten. But the Italian conquerors of Ethiopia are finding it an endless task to subjugate a a people with centuries of independence behind them.

Another is the war in Spain, in which it is claimed a million people were killed in one year. If that is true, it is more than double the number of Americans killed in all of America's wars.

The third, of course, is the war in China, which is indescribably horrible because most of the slaughter is of bewildered masses to whom the machines of modern war appear as supernatural monsters.

We have no part in any of these wars, and can do no more than regret the appalling slaughter which impends in China.

Our duty is to PROTECT OUR OWN PEOPLE, caught in the war zones, and to EQUIP OUR COUNTRY FOR DEFENSE against any threat to our future security that may evolve from the world's wars.

America sadly views the war in China as a tragic struggle between two nations we value highly as friends and customers.

Japan and China are like two citizens who buy their household goods from the same merchant. If they get into a neighborhood quarrel and kill each other off, the merchant loses two outlets for his wares.

Japan ranks third as a market for American goods. Of all the goods China buys from the outside world, 20 per cent comes from America.

So we stand to lose, no matter if it is not our war, no matter who wins or loses.

Biting the Helping Hand

"THE WPA Guide to Massachusetts," a book written by relief workers and published with relief money, could be aptly titled: "BITING THE HAND THAT FED THEM."

The book's derogatory references to Massachusetts courts, to distinguished men and to the City of Boston might be expected in a Moscow journal edited by Joseph Stalin. Hardly in a volume financed with the American taxpayers' money.

Undoubtedly the majority of the men and women who assembled the material for the "Guide" did their work honestly and well. Numerous pages prove that.

But, apparently and regrettably, there were some who could not resist the temptation to pour the Parlor Pink flavoring. They had to gnaw the helping hand.

With the grace of a cow doing a tap dance, they dragged in the notorious Sacco-Vanzetti case, then added a commentary that would do justice to the Communistic Daily Worker.

Standing out in stark contrast was their treatment of the historic Boston Tea Party. That received NINE lines.

And lost in oblivion were the disastrous Spring floods of 1936, which sent two-score persons to their graves and caused property damage of millions of dollars. One paragraph dealt with them.

The fact cannot be denied; this guidebook is an insult to Massachusetts. Money paid out in taxation has been used to cast scorn on the people who paid it.

And what was a sincere effort to assist jobless writers has become in a large sense a harvest of propaganda.

Let's Save Our Homes

CONGRESSMAN Arthur D. Healey, of the Eighth Massachusetts District, sends us a welcome letter from Washington.

"I have read your recent editorial urging legislation liberalizing the terms of HOLC mortgages," he writes, "and I wish to express to you my accord with your views and my commendation of the worthy task you have undertaken."

We know that we can depend on him to fight for the legislation which, in our opinion, will do the most to stop mortgage foreclosures in New England and elsewhere.

This legislation would reduce the present interest rate of 5 and 6 per cent on HOLC mortgages to 3½ per cent, and spread the time of paying installments of principal and interest from 10 and 15 years to 25 years.

It is our hope that Congressman Healey's championship of this measure will inspire other members of Congress to help save the homes of their constituents. It certainly should. Relief is needed everywhere.

A Danger To Be Avoided

IF 1026 persons in Massachusetts were stricken with scarlet fever or any other contagious disease, everybody would begin to do some serious thinking about his own health.

He would reason that the odds in favor of his contracting the illness were dangerously probable.

Unfortunately, so general a fear does not apply to suspended and revoked automobile licenses.

Last week 1026 motorists did lose their driving privileges. Registrar Goodwin punished them for various offenses, ranging from too little caution to too much liquor.

Yet, this week, thousands go on driving quite as though there were not a motor regulation on the statute books. The law may get the other fellow, but it won't get them. That's their attitude.

A more calloused philosophy cannot be imagined, as the deaths of eleven persons on our Bay State highways last week prove.

Revocation of one's license ought to be considered a serious DANGER. Like scarlet fever, it should be avoided.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Aug. 20—Thoughts while strolling: Teaching hygiene in schools somehow always amuses me. Most of the boys in our town could teach the professors. The actor with a seat on the Stock Exchange: Georgie Price. Save for Dick Maney, no spectacular press agents like Harry Reichenbach any more.

O. O. McIntyre

Rhyme: Girls named Kay are usually gay. Confirmed blue collarists: John Golden, Arthur William Brown and Richard Watts, Jr. And then there's the pink-collared Ham Fisher. The late Jim Dooling was the most erudite of Tammany leaders yet looked like a broken down pug. Football smashups.

Whenever we try to tell a funny story to a crowd, everybody somehow begins to look like Ned Sparks and Stan Laurel. Wonder how many other grown-ups now and then get a sudden yen for jelly-beans. Gene, the head man at the Colony, suggests J. P. Morgan in younger days.

If there is anyone in any trade who has salvaged more fun out of life than James Montgomery Flagg, he's escaped our eye. Adela Rogers St. Johns sounds like falling down three steps. Beatrice Lillie could wear almost any ordinary-sized finger ring as a necklace.

Pontifical radio announcer: Bill Hay. Add efficient secretaries: Will Hays' Julia Kelly, Major Bowes' Bessie Mack and Roy Howard's Miss Lowensohn. A group of pretty girls sighing in front of a Fred Astaire poster near Music Hall. I'm as skinny and have more hair than he—but nary a glance.

The most indefatigable first nighters are Hope Hampton and her movie magnate husband, Jules Brulatour. If in town, they never miss a premiere, occupying a choice pew down front, all plushed up to the quick.

This romance of the millionaire and the former Philadelphia department store girl is one of the sagas of Broadway. He has spent snug fortunes priming her for a career on the screen, stage and grand opera and she developed not only acute histrionic powers but a voice highly bespoken by European critics.

Yet, somehow or other, she just missed clicking in a big way.

Few who loved publicity had so much of it after passing as Flo Ziegfeld. There is the theater bearing his name, the Ziegfeld Girls' Clubs in all large cities and, of course, the film, The Great Ziegfeld, which carried his name to every remote corner. Two books recounting his theatrical career are in the making. He was more spectacular in death than in life.

I knew much about the great circus trapezist Alfredo Codona, who killed his wife and himself recently, through Courtney Ryley Cooper, his closest friend outside the profession.

The love of his life was Lillian Leitzel, the aerialist, killed in a fall in Copenhagen. The tragedy of her passing had overwhelmed him when a torn tendon in his shoulder ended his career, notable as the only man to be caught by a fellow trapezist after a triple somersault.

A gay dare-devil, the blows stunned him and he would sit for hours at the Coopers without speaking a word. Then he tried for happiness again with marriage and the management of his old act. But his efforts failed.

Let no one say
And say it to your shame
That all was beauty here
Until you came.

From the time the sign was installed, employes noticed a restraint of visitors in littering walks and lawns.

A Broadway generating ground for the wise-crack is a barber shop near the Strand Theater where song writers, gag and radio script men and sundry noddies go to be tonsored. All day long it is a-crackle, like cross-fire vaudeville patter, from chair to chair. Among those who drop in for laughs are Major Bowes, Irving Berlin, Lou Holtz, Abe Lyman, Harry Richman and Phil Baker. No one is immune from the ribbing.

From a magazine story. The poor waiter, with a sweep of his arm, brushed salt, pepper shakers and the mustard jar into his lap and what could he say?

Henry Sell suggests: "My condiments to you, Sir!"

There used to be a crack auto salesman who could mingle, in the manner of double talk, vituperation and insults so cleverly with a saccharine sales talk that no prospect ever caught the insinuations. Proving that most of us hear only what we want to hear.

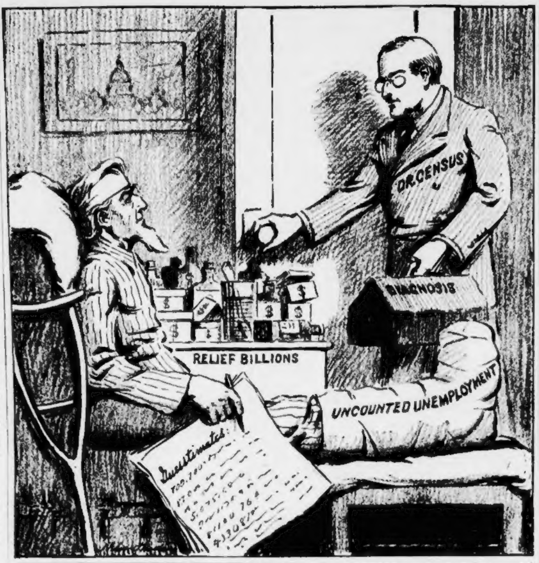
Call a Physician -:- -:-

By Nelson Harding



Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Women believe such amazing tommyrot about men. And I'm not now alluding to Giggly Gert, of the notion counter, or Bashful Bess, out in the sticks.

Elsie Robinson

I'm referring to smart modern names . . . bachelor working girls . . . college graduates . . . brilliant, professional She's. One and all, regardless of age, creed or color or condition, females have these notions about males. Namely:

His tastes, attitudes and reactions are utterly unlike hers. She has a highly attuned and refined "nervous system." He's just put together with rivets.

All men are by nature philanderers—no matter how long they may have been married or how faithfully they may have served the Missus. Just give the Old Boy a chance and he'll turn tomcat. For the chief and constant desire of the male heart is to "Marry Some Woman."

But no man is ever fair to a woman, for the whole sex is selfish, jealous, coarse, unreasonable, stupid, unreliable.

WOMAN'S OPINION

But, in spite of their obvious stupidity, men think they know everything, and are terribly stuck on themselves for no good reason at all.

Because of this, any Smart Gal can make a fool of any man without half trying.

So things being as they are, the only way a Nice Woman can get along with a Horrid Man is to—

Flatter him incessantly.

Never let him know what you're thinking, but always make him believe that you're thinking of him.

Be nice to him—when he deserves it—but never too nice. Never do too much for him or he won't appreciate you.

Never let him be too sure of you. Keep him guessing. Don't let him think he's the Only One. Play on his jealousy.

Above all, watch him night and day, and never, NEVER, give him a chance to put anything over on you.

This, I repeat, is what Every Woman thinks of Every Man in her secret heart—and has been thinking for the last thirty million years. And if you think that a few years of co-education and equal suffrage are going to put a dent in a tradition like that, you don't know feminine nature.

NO MONOPOLY

Why is marriage still such a heavy risk, though we've been practicing it for centuries? Why is friendship almost impossible between men and women—and business partnership a continual pain in the neck? That's why.

Because women have inherited these idiotic notions from the old days when squaws whispered mutiny over grinding bowls and ladies started wars in caves.

But it's time we got over it, sisters. The simple truth is that man and woman were moulded from the same hunk of mud, endowed with exactly the same emotions.

Ninety-nine out of a hundred men get fed up with romance mighty pronto, and much prefer a snappy game of poker or a lazy hour of fishing to any Cleopatra that ever smirked from a tiger skin.

All of which is the truth—s'help me. But just try to make any Nice Lady believe it! For what's there left to make life exciting for a Nice Lady if you take away all the dirt?

Marry -GO- Round

By Helen Rowland

WHAT EVE KNEW

Outside of the obstinate dandelion, the only thing that appears to thrive and flourish best on complete neglect is a man's infatuation for a woman.

When a woman hears that her ex-husband has remarried, she sometimes feels like sending the bride a bill for all the time and labor she has spent in putting the first improvements on him, and making him over from a wild bachelor into a tame husband.

If you can't understand why women spend so much time and money in beauty parlors, instead of in doing good works, just ponder on what the masculine vote would be in a popularity contest between Queen Wilhelmina and Marlene Dietrich.

Men hate loud, boisterous girls, declares the Cynic. A woman, like a radio should be tuned down to a soft, unobtrusive pitch, which does not interfere with a man's train of thought or drown out the sound of his own voice.

Why didn't the Lord make all women sweet, beautiful and a little bit dumb? A man may admire a brilliant, witty, vivacious woman—but he doesn't want a front seat at a fireworks display every evening for the rest of his life.

The average woman spends at least one quarter of her life listening to her husband's advice—and another quarter pretending to take it.

That's That -:- -:- -:-

By Bruce Gustin

The ostrich, trying to hide by burying his head in the sand, is no more ridiculous than some of our modern statesmen. The world knows China and Japan are at war, but officially no nation recognizes the existence of this war.

Even the combatants have carefully refrained from any declaration of war. And Secretary of State Hull of the United States, in an attempt to get the Japanese and Chinese to quit fighting in Shanghai where the lives of thousands of Americans and other "foreigners" are endangered, pleads with them not to use that city as a "theater of operations."

Applying the term "theater of operations" to a battlefield where 3000 persons were killed in one day's bombing is the last word in diplomacy.

Special instructions have been given the Navy for protecting or evacuating Americans in Shanghai. There is no certain way of protecting them there while Japanese and Chinese planes are bombarding the city. Aerial bombs cannot always be depended upon to reach the target for which they are intended.

And the chances are that neither the Japanese nor the Chinese care a lot if some of their bombs and shells hit Americans or the nationals of any other country.

Finsler's comet, according to the latest calculations, is ramBling through space at a speed of better than 6600 miles a minute. Compared with earth speeds, that is mighty fast, but compared with the speed of light which travels 186,000 miles a second, this comet is just a cosmic loafer.

An ambitious job is being mapped out for the next session of Congress. It is to devise a plan to insure farmers against loss. It is to work out a program which will make every farmer prosperous and happy and satisfied.

Senator Smith of South Carolina, chairman of the Senate subcommittee which is to work out the new agricultural program, says "we are going directly to the dirt farmers for our information; we don't want beautiful theories that don't work."

All he will get are theories and if he finds any which will work he will succeed where no nation yet has been able to succeed.

Many countries have tried to control and stabilize agricultural production but no system of crop control has yet worked.

Some have appeared successful for a short time, but eventually they have run up against the fact that there is such a thing as WORLD production and that when one country restricts its crops others promptly increase theirs.

One of the most shocking things about the police announcement that a 57-year-old WPA painter in New York has confessed he ravished and then strangled and beat to death a 4-year-old girl is the revelation his previous record of arrests showed he was too dangerous a creature to be allowed at large.

Once law enforcement authorities get their hands on fiends and degenerates, or other unfortunates of this type, such prisoners should not be turned loose until they have been made harmless.

Legislative bodies should lose no time in enacting whatever laws are necessary to take care of this situation.

That was an interesting exchange of views by Congressmen Kramer of California and Crawford of Michigan on whether a college education is necessary for success.

Upholding the affirmative, Kramer argued that "higher education refines the mind and fits it for reception of knowledge needed to advance toward the goal of success."

The main difference between these two Congressmen seems to be on whether a college education can be acquired without going to college. And that depends upon the native ability of the individual and how strong his desire for education is.

There isn't any doubt that many people who go to college have no business there. Some are more interested in having a good time than in acquiring an education. Others are unable to assimilate the educational diet they receive.

New York's 'Finest'

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

There are no two ways about it —the police force of the City of New York has every right in the world to the proud title it won many years ago, "The Finest."

Edwin C. Hill

Reams have been written about the smart, sharp fellows of Scotland Yard and the astute sleuths of the Paris Surete, and their wonderful work in solving murder mysteries. But in my honest opinion neither Scotland Yard nor the Surete ever saw the day they could stack up against the Detective Bureau of the New York Police Department.

The other day I went back through the files over a period of a few months only, and, without really searching, came across 12 murder mysteries swiftly and thoroughly solved by the brisk lads downtown.

Who can forget the case of the murdered Mrs. Titterton, seemingly insoluble, and suddenly broken wide open; or the Speedway murder, or the cases of several perverts kindly paroled from prison to prey once more on women and little children?

No wonder that, with this record to boast of, the police of New York are just about fed up on the type of detective and policeman so often presented by stage and screen. They are downright sore over seeing the sleuths and the pavement pounders portrayed as fumble-footed fat-wits who make comedy relief while Mr. Sherlock Holmes of Baker street sniffs measures, broods, takes a shot in the arm and remarks in a bored tone, "Watson, the case is solved."

THEY HATE PHILO

They are ready to fight if you mention that affected ass, Philo Vance, to them, and they'll take you through all the detective fiction there is and show you things new and fancy in the way of profanity. And they're going to do something about it. Just the other day Deputy Chief Inspector John J. O'Connell, an able and intelligent policeman, put through a resolution in the convention of the New York State Association of Police Chiefs to take it up with the screen moguls, producers and directors. A committee has been appointed.

The policemen have a case. Too long has the "flatfoot" been a standing caricature of the comics and films, with his No. 14, creaking, bulldog-toed shoes and his "dese and dose" diction. Unquestionably New York, and most other police forces, have had cops who were thick-necked and dumb, but they have about passed out of the picture.

Nowadays slim, young athletes, often facing a spray of machine gun bullets in some dark alley at night, protect your property and mine. Putting down a crime is no job for a cake-eater. The police are dealing with tough hombres.

As a one-time police reporter, I know that the all-around, dangerous depravity of the day's drag in the lock-up is something entirely beyond the ken of the average citizen, safe in his job and his home and as innocent as a babe in the world of crime.

HOOVER AND G-MEN

G. Edgar Hoover and his G-men have done much to bring about a new and truer conception of law-enforcement officers. About 75 per cent of these men are college men. They are intelligent, pleasant and personable citizens whom you would not hesitate to invite to your home.

The New York police also cites an increasing proportion of college-trained men on the metropolitan force. They remind us that many of their detectives are men who would pass in any company for business and professional men. They note the high degree of specialization in modern police work, which is bringing into big city forces men of scientific training.

Any one who will take the trouble for even a superficial inquiry will find that police work of today has gone through a transformation requiring special skill and training in personnel to a degree which has all but eliminated the old-fashioned "dick."

It is true that, back in Bill Devery's day, there were many ham-fisted and thickskulled operators of the type of Philo Vance's Sargeant Heath, but if you think that that is true now, you're away behind the times.

Crime detection is becoming scientific in this country, as it did in Europe, quite a few decades ago.

Here's hoping the movies meet the police half way without anybody pulling a night stick, a law or an unfair gag!

March of Events

By Benjamin DeCasseres

In the list of American dead from Shanghai appeared this paragraph:

"An Australian-born American barmaid known only as 'Dodo Dynamite.'"

I see in my mind's eye a beautiful Junoesque woman who knew all the ports of the South Seas, who had slid thousands of whiskies over bars in Pago-Pago, Honolulu, Hongkong, Rara Tonga and Manila.

Who was "Dodo Dynamite," barmaid to the Orient, blown to bits by a Chinese shell in Shanghai?

If he were living in the United States today he would change his comment to:

The House of Representatives passed UNREAD after a consideration of only TWO HOURS the complicated eight-point tax-loophole bill.

This piecemeal abandonment by Congress of its duties and prerogatives is the slow but sure road to the final absorption of ALL ITS POWERS into the breast of the MOLOCH OF DICTATORIAL BUREAUCRACY.

The erection of a comfort station in a small town in France not only divides the town into squabbling factions, splits the local church and causes riots, but finally, becoming a national issue, causes the dissolution of the International Disarmament Conference at Geneva.

Democratic individualism is the largest degree of PERSONAL LIBERTY for each human being regulated by common and constitutional law.

Democratic individualism is that form of society in which the RIGHTS OF MINORITIES are religiously guarded against the encroachments of majorities masking themselves under "mandates" and "the will of the people."

Lastly, democratic individualism requires that form of government that promotes VARIETY and SELF-RELIANCE by NON-INTERFERENCE and stimulates INDIVIDUAL POSSIBILITIES opposed to sameness, public parasitism and individual sterility.

This has been the American ideal for 150 years. Anything else is alien-minded Socialism, Communism or Fascism.

He has 40 children by 27 more or less happy mothers. Thirty of these are soldiers in his private army.

It is a frightful thing to face that almost everything that is being produced or bought and sold nowadays in three-fourths of the world is being weighed in the scales of war.

Even the neutral countries, those farthest removed from the psychological and physical areas of war, are working for what Napoleon himself called "THE TRADE OF BARBARIANS."

Between 5,000 and 10,000 tons of scrap-iron are being shipped from New Orleans EVERY week to Italy, Japan, Poland, Belgium, Germany and England. Even tin cans go to feed the ovens of hate.

There is no longer anything that can be called "junk." Europe and Asia can turn it all into murder-machines.
